Hokum Sometimes Useful
Let the Spirits Talk
Science and Superstition
Small Thefts, Dangerous

By Arthur Brisbane

BISHOP STEWART, of the Protestant Episcopal diocese of Chicago, wishes that Thanksgiving could be freed from "a hokum of patriotism."

The learned bishop does not admire "a certain kind of American that goes blowing around the world thanking God that this country has all the gold and democracy there is."

Nevertheless, there is value in "patriotic hokum." For "to convince others, be yourself convinced." Several kinds of religions "go blowing around the world" thanking God that they possess all the true religion and all the genuine salvation there is, and those are the religions that make converts.

Britain contemplates changing a law that makes practice of spiritualism and its beliefs an offense.

Such a man as Sir Oliver Lodge, one of the greatest living scientists, could be jailed or "put in the stocks in the local market place as a rogue and a vagabond" for asking a medium to give him spirit news.

Belief that ghosts or spirits return through trillions of miles of the ether or "continuum," as Jeans and other Einstein disciples prefer to call it, coming all that distance only to say, "Mamma is happy," may seem silly to some. But men should be allowed to believe, in a religious way, what they please. It is good intellectual practice. The savage needs his idol with green eyes and a pink nose, a higher religious concept calls for four unpleasant horsemen, and the house of fire. If Spiritualists want ghosts that play on tambourines, lift tables, disgorge ectoplasm and say, "Mamma is happy," there should be no interference.

On the 300th anniversary of Johann Kepler's death, Einstein tells the Prussian Academy of Science what wonders Kepler performed, overcoming poverty, worry, and making clear to human beings the laws of geometry and time.

Much progress in human intelligence has been made since Kepler's day. To hold the emperor's favor, Kepler had to tell the imperial fortune and pretend to predict the future by astrology, which he knew to be nonsense.

And even the great Tycho Brahe, who mapped the heavens without telescope and took Kepler for his assistant when Kepler was 29, had his superstitions.

He kept with him an idiot, that crouched at his feet at the table, eating scraps thrown to him.

And when the idiot uttered meaningless sounds, Tycho Brahe caused all his other guests to be silent, believing that the idiot's talk was inspired.

There is a good deal of scientific talk, so called, today that might well have been uttered by Tycho Brahe's idiot. Some of it "refers to time that began at a certain point in the past, and some of it drivels about space that curves on itself, and is therefore not infinite.

In Chicago two men, one with four children, one with two, both out of work a long time, tried to steal turkeys, and were as unsuccessful as they had been trying to get jobs. Policeman killed Fred Bernard as he fled from a butcher shop with the turkey that never reached his four children. Joseph Martin was killed by the owner of a butcher shop, and his two children will have a funeral, and no turkey. Property, turkeys included, must be protected. How marvellous it would be if we could attend to criminals in the million dollar class as well as we attend to turkey thieves.

Germany lost the war but is not losing time in this peace.

Using foreign capital, partly American, and 27,000 workmen, German will build 500,000 tons of new commercial shi-s. Modern war kills men, but no longer kills women, that create the men. It does not kill old men, and scientists are usually beyond the military age.

Germany has her scientists, to create a new industrial Germany, her women, to create the new German generation, and is better off on the whole, than some of those that "won the war."

The government at Washington seems not very proud of its World Court proposition and propaganda. You read that arrangements will be made to defer any action on the protocol. It will be mentioned to the Senate, with the request "don't do anything about it just now, let it go over. It might cause unpleasant discussion." The administration evidently knows, in a vague sort of way, that the people do not agree with international bankers, and do not

BLAKE REMOVAL STORY FALSE, SAYS HINES

Veterans' Regional Chief, Who Has Won High Praise, Safe in Boston Job

Gen. Frank T. Hines, national administrator of veterans' affairs, at Washington, today branded as false a report that Col. William J. Blake, Yankee Division veteran, was to be ousted as regional director of the Veterans' Bureau here.

"It is not true; there is no truth in the report," he said.

Col. Blake received the same assurance directly from Col. George E. Ijams, national director of the Veterans' Bureau.

At the same time leading members of the American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars, and prominent Massachusetts men, including Senator Walsh and Gen. Edward L. Logan, were rallying to Col. [illegible]ke's support [illegible] of them telegraphing Washington in protest.

"NO TRUTH IN IT."

In telephone communication with Col. Ijams, the local regional director, was told:

"You can quote me, Bill, as telling you that I know absolutely nothing about any investigation or any contemplated changes in your office.

"If anything like that ever occurs, I shall let you know first.

"I am very sure that Gen. Hines (national administrator of veterans' affairs) knows nothing about it either, as he certainly would not give out information like that without first taking the matter up with me."

Col. Blake said that Gen. Hines and Col. Ijams both visited the Boston offices last month and in speaking with William H. Doyle former department commander of the American Legion, praised the efficiency of the Boston bureau.

DENIES LAW SUIT CHARGE

"I do not believe that Gen. Hines has made a 'secret probe' as he is not that type of man," said Col. Blake. "He is a 'square-shooter' and if there was any truth in the assertion that he was dissatisfied, he would come direct to me about it first, or send for me to see him at Washington.

"As for the charge that expensive law suits were being prosecuted against the government here, we have a letter on file from the attorney-general of the United States commending us for our work in defending cases in the courts. Every veteran has a right to go to court about his claim."

He said his office had nothing to do with disability compensation for former officers, or with compensation to veterans who are working for the bureau in this district. Of 318 employes, he said, only 29 were receiving disability compensation and only five were retired emergency officers.

SOVIET WIDENS PLOT TRIAL

Moscow, Nov. 28 (AP)—N. B. Krilenko, the most feared prosecutor in all Soviet Russia, today called unexpected witnesses into the dramatic trial of eight men charged with plotting to overthrow the Soviet Government. He was not expected to do this.

The thousands of Communists who have been listening to this trial over the radio thought that when the last of the defendants confessed and repented yesterday the four judges would immediately pass sentence.

But Krilenko required the presence of several notable Soviet figures to bring out more incriminating facts against the accused and the "industrial party," through which they are alleged to have plotted with foreign "capitalist" powers.

He called P. S. Osanchill, a member of the Central Executive committee, and vice president of the State Planning Commission, L. N. Urovsky, former member of the finance committee, and several other past and present government officials.

He did not say what he expected to draw from these witnesses, but it was understood that he hoped to bring out in their testimony further details of the parts played by foreign powers in the Anti-Soviet intrigue.

It was more than likely, however, that their statements would be received in secret session, for the court ruled yesterday that there was to be no more open testimony regarding "friendly foreign powers."

6 PLANES IN SEARCH FOR MRS. KEITH-MILLER

Australian Pilot Took Off From Miami for Havana This Morning

Havana, Nov. 28 (AP)—Two planes, one of them an amphibian, left Havana this afternoon for Miami in search of Mrs. J. M. Keith-Miller, Australian pilot who has been missing on a flight between Cuba and Florida.

Miami, Fla., Nov. 28 (AP)—Four airships left here today to search for the plane of Mrs. J. Keith-Miller, Australian woman flier, who was several hours overdue on an attempted flight from Havana to Miami.

Pan American Airway dispatched one plane to search the East Florida coast between here and Key West and ordered a regular Miami-Havana passenger plane to leave its course for a search of the west coast.

Hhe Curtiss-Wright marine base ordered a seaplane to go as far as the Dry Tortugas in the search and the Curtiss-Wright company prepared to send a land plane as far as Key West.

Messages received by the Curtiss-Wright company today said Mrs. Keith-Miller left Havana at 9:11 a. m., E. S. T.

Mrs. Keith-Miller was flying the low-winged monoplane in which she made a three-stop flight from Pittsburgh to Havana several days ago.

Weather reports here today told of a strong headwind for north-bound planes from Havana all along the Florida Keys.

Flier Had Premonition; Plane Poorly Equipped

Havana, Nov. 28 (AP)—Airport officials here this afternoon were deeply concerned over the failure of Mrs. J. M. Keith-Miller to arrive at Miami, Fla., on schedule. They were considering an air search for her.

Mrs. Miller took off here early this morning and expected to reach Miami before noon. She had not arrived at 1 o'clock.

Some apprehension was felt here at the flier's insistence upon starting today despite unfavorable weather reports.

"I am a little worried about the trip," the Australian woman told the Associated Press today shortly before her tiny plane, its motor humming smoothly, took off.

"I have no blind flying instruments, radio or turn and bank dials on my ship. I have a raft, but I doubt if I would be able to get it overboard and then pump it up in the water if I fell. I'm going to start out and trust to luck that everything goes well."

It was a second-hand plane which she had purchased four months ago and had it reconditioned. The gas tanks, arranged in the form of seats to conserve space in the ship, carried enough fuel for nine hours of flying under ordinary circumstances.

Mrs. Keith-Miller recently flew from Los Angeles to New York in less than 22 hours, setting a new woman's record for the distance.

She went to New York from Australia about three years ago and quickly became a success as a commercial pilot.

TEN DEATHS IN WAKE OF COLD THAT GRIPS BOSTON AND WEST

BOY KILLED, 2 INJURED COASTING

Freeze to Continue Here Tomorrow; Ohio Is Blanketed by Blizzard

Bringing death, suffering and high property damage, severe cold gripped Boston and the entire East and Middle West today. Great blizzards raged in several sections.

The first fatal coasting accident in New England occurred today at Beverly where Richard Burns, 7, son of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Burns, was killed when his sled collided with an automobile at Bisson and Lothrop sts.

Two Somerville boys were injured in a similar crash on Temple st. They are John Prendergast, 8, of 120 Bartlett st. and Ransom Mason, 8, of 119 Bartlett st. Frank Walker of Bradbury ave., Medford, driver of the car, took them to Sunnyside Hospital where they were treated for cuts and bruises.

7 DIE IN BLIZZARD

Seven deaths are attributed to a blizzard which is sweeping across northern Ohio and which at noon today had laid a blanket of snow nine inches deep in Cleveland. In Baltimore Mrs. Mary Montecavello, 45, was found dead from exposure on her front porch.

A man was also found dead from exposure near Phelps, N. Y.

Motor traffic was dangerous all over New England, with ice coating most of the roads north and west of Boston. Firemen were called out to innumerable chimney fires and auto mechanics were busy thawing out the radiators of hundreds of cars frozen in garages over night.

The minimum temperature officially in Boston was 21, but all the suburbs reported considerably lower figures, including Burlington with 3 above, Bedford 9, Lexington 10, and Concord 12.

Continued cold for about 24 hours was the weather bureau's forecast at noon. Rising temperatures are promised for tomorrow afternoon and Sunday and fair weather throughout the week-end

THOUSANDS SUCCORED.

Fall temperatures sent thousands of needy persons to seek shelter at public buildings and charitable institutions in the large cities.

Zero weather prevails in Northern New England and upper New York State, while as far south as Baltimore it was only 5 above this forenoon, and in Cincinnati, 2. New York, with 17, had the coldest November 28 in 29 years. In Philadelphia it was 18.

Duluth, Minn., was the coldest today, with 12 below. At LaCrosse, Wis., it was 8 below. Chicago reported 1 above zero.

Connecticut reported new low marks for the season with a reading of 16 degrees at New Haven. The previous low mark for this year was 28 on Nov. 7.

The Lake region suffered most. Snow was reported more than two feet on the level in many places. High winds, especially over Lake Erie, piled the snow in drifts ten and twelve feet high.

At Dunkirk, Fredonia, Brockton, Sheridan and Silver Creek, N. Y., Thanksgiving visitors were still snowbound today, many of them seeking help to free abandoned autos from the drifts.

The coldest spot in North America was The Pas, Manitoba, with a temperature of 16 below zero.

As far South as Alabama, Georgia and Mississippi ice had formed. Emergency relief crews worked overtime in soup kitchens and lodgings to protect the homeless and unemployed.

Hoover Finishes Message Without Dry Law Advice

Washington, Nov. 28—President Hoover completed his message to Congress and sent it to the printer today without the benefit of advice on prohibition from the Wickersham Commission.

The returning Congress is showing impatience over the commission's inability to arrive at conclusions. Rep. Shreve (R.), of Pennsylvania, chairman of the appropriations sub-committee that has to do with prohibition funds, announced he was in favor of holding up all appropriations for prohibition enforcement until the Wickersham board reports.

Rep. James M. Beck (R.), of Pennsylvania, former solicitor general and accounted the foremost constitutional lawyer in Congress, has been advocating suspension of all enforcement appropriations as the easiest method of "killing prohibition."

Reports that the commission would recommend low-voltage beer continue to float about the capitol. These rumors have aroused the drys.

The W. C. T. U. came forth with a statement today proclaiming that 4 per cent beer is intoxicating, in fact. The organization declared the Supreme court never would permit beer to be made under the 18th amendment.

The statement said:

"Political leaders, who keep in the limelight with beer propaganda, know that 4 per cent beer is not only impossible under the 18th amendment, but is unsatisfactory to the drinker; that 2.75 per cent beer would be even less satisfactory; that neither would be a commercial success, and that beer will not settle prohibition problems, but merely complicate them."

DRINKING TODAY IS CHARGE ON MRS. THAYER

Officer, Witness for Husband in a Divorce Battle, Says He Smelled Her Breath

Worcester, Nov. 28 — The charge that Mrs. Jane H. Thayer was under the influence of liquor in court this morning, created a sensation at the resumption of the Thayers cross-suit divorce hearing.

The charge was made by Atty. Frank B. Hall, chief counsel for Fred B. Thayer, who recalled to the witnes stand Deputy Sheriff Harry J. Flynn to substantiate it.

"Have you seen Mrs. Thayer this morning?" he was asked. "I have."

Q.—What was her condition in reference to whether of not she had been drinking?

Atty. Clarence E. Tupper of counsel for Mrs. Thayer objected, but Judge Harry H. Atwood admitted the question.

A.—I say she has been drinking.

HAD SMELL OF ALCOHOL

Q.—How could you tell that?

A.—I detected a strong odor of alcoholic liquor on her breath as she passed me at the door,

Mrs. Thayer, wrapped in a raccoon coat, punctuated the examination with frequent coughing spells.

Judge Atwood made no comment on Atty. Hall's charges against Mrs. Thayer and the matter was dropped.

Atty. Tupper recalled Thayer who occupied the stand much of last week.

He asked if the witness had not received flowers from his wife on the anniversary of their marriage, in January last. Thayer said he had, but he also received a bill for the flowers, which were sent to the hospital where he was a patient. He denied giving the flowers to Miss Catherine Murphy, a nurse, one of two women named by Mrs. Thayer.

Atty. Tupper in his opening, said he would show that Mrs. Thayer lived constantly at the Grafton home, meeting her husband's friends and guests.

CALLS CHAUFFEUR TRICKY

The lawyer said he would show that Mrs. Thayer looked after the house competently, and that Thayer had full authority and control of it. He said he would show that Thayer's use of liquor was to such an excess as not only to constitute cruelty but gross and confirmed habits of intoxication.

Mrs. Thayer, Atty. Tupper said, did not use liquor to excess until it was provided and urged by her husband. He said Thayer had hired Albert Desjardin, and made a confidant of him.

His first witness was Thayer's daughter by his first marriage, Miss Carrie G. Thayer, who testified she was divorced a year ago.

Miss Thayer said her father was living in the hired man's house when she visited him at Grafton. She said the first time she saw Desjardin, "supposedly the chauffeur," he was in the house with Mrs. Thayer.

Asked if her father told her about finding Desjardin with Mrs. Thayer, the witness replied:

"Yes, but that's all he told me, because he doesn't discuss this sort of thing with me. I got the details when I came to court."

Prohibition enforcement and northern federal judges say that home brewing of beer, and making wine from grape juice are legal. The federal judge at Tampa, Fla., says manufacturing of possessing any alcoholic beverage in a home is illegal.

Government agencies, judges, enforcement officers and others should agree on what the law is, if possible. To have different sets of laws for different states would make confusion worse.

JANE NEWTON, 17-year-old Royalston school girl, whose story cleared Carl E. Sault, wealthy merchant of abduction charge.

WIFE TO 'DRESS DOWN' SAULT

Athol, Nov. 28—Carl E. Sault, 55, missing clothier, today is cleared of an abduction charge but faces a "dressing down" when he gets home.

A warrant charging abduction of Jane E. Newton, Athol high school girl, was dropped when she returned to her home yesterday and absolved him of the charge.

But Mrs. Sault, was less forgiving today.

"I'm not depending on courts or police for the dressing down he will get," she said. "There's no charge, as you call it, against him. I'll take care of that myself."

Sault vanished a month ago with Miss Newton who was a clerk in his store after school and boarded in his home.

When she returned to her parents' home in Royalston yesterday she said the merchant took her to "see the world" after her own persistent pleas and said he was "a perfect gentleman" at all times.

It is understood she is traveling alone this time. She will visit her daughter and son-in-law, the King and Queen of Jugo-Slavia, en route to France.

Queen Marie has been in good health and it is whispered that her journey is a result of political events, notably her failure to reconcile King Carol and his wife, Queen Helene. The King has recently installed his paramour, Mme. Lupescu, at the palace, Helene having refused to return to him.

DOUBLE SHIFT PROGRAM BANS UNEMPLOYMENT IN RUSSIA

FAR TOO FEW WORKERS IN COUNTRY

More Than 500,000 Women to Be Drawn Into Industry Within Next Year

(Russia, peopled by millions, has no unemployment. The problem, rather, is that of too much work and too few workers. It is noted in this, the first of three articles on life as it is lived in the Soviets, that in Russia living is a business running on schedule, with the result that "jobs" are plentiful and factories hum 24 hours in the day.)

By CHARMION VON WIEGAND
Universal Service Staff Correspondent
(Copyright, 1930, Universal Service, Inc.)

Moscow, Nov. 28—America may have its unemployment and its standards of living commensurate with one's position in life. Russia has a single standard of living, and more than enough work to "go 'round."

Any picture of the Soviet Union today, after many trips to the inland cities and inspections of the great industrializations being accomplished under the five-year plan, must include the hammer and sickle in every hand—with new hammers and new sickles thrust into every new hand that manifests itself. There is enough work—there are too few workers.

"Tempo! Tempo!" is the cry of the Bolsheviks speeding up the industry of their country. The old Asiatic laziness has been prodded out of existence by the five-day week, the double and triple-shift working program and the never ceasing wheels of Russia's innumerable factories.

WOMEN "SHOCK WORKERS"

Things have come to such a pass that more than 500,000 women are to be drawn into industry within the next year, and attempts will be made to increase this new band of "shock workers" to 1,000,000. These women will be recruited from the home, from the kitchen and nursery, where they have stayed while other women have gone forward "in business."

These million new housewives who will join the workers' ranks with their husbands have more children than the present women in the regiments of industry, and the problem of handling their children alone creates new jobs. New kitchens must be built on the style of the fabrika kuckhina in Moscow, and for this alone $65,000,000 will be appropriated from the housing fund of the Soviet Union.

If you would not harbor the idea of having someone work at your desk, fumbling among your papers, while you slept the night away, vision the double or triple-shift system now in vogue in Moscow. Many clubs, public baths, motion picture and legitimate theaters are passing into the two-shift plan.

TWO-FOLD PURPOSE

Up to now, banks, transport departments, courts and administrative offices have worked only on the single shift system. The latest maneuver is to force the business offices to operate on the two-shift system, providing work for double the amount of workers. One organization works from 9 in the morning until 4 o'clock in the afternoon; the second from 4 o'clock until 11 in the night.

The reason for this is twofold; the troublesome housing problem in the cities may be partially solved (two people on different shifts in a single room), and the budget for the building of office buildings during 1931, being very large, can be reduced with the surplus used for workers' dwelling or the purchase of necessary raw materials for industry. This not to mention decrease of payments for upkeep, and the saving occasioned by the use of a single set of office equipment by two forces.

UNEMPLOYMENT FANTASY

Arguments against the dual-shift system are numerous in the cause of organization and inter-office communication, but the fact remains that more jobs are created, the housing situation is remedied somewhat and unemployment is a fantasy.

It is hoped next year will see the entire life of the country organized on the shift working system. Elementary schools are already operating on three shifts, and theaters will soon give two performances a day where matinees never have heretofore existed save on holidays—such as the anniversary of the revolution.

Despite humorous situations and more trying complications, the dual shift system is being introduced everywhere. Even restaurants are going on two shifts, and factory eating houses supply good hot dinners for the workers of both shifts.

(Tomorrow's article will tell how the peasants of Russia live, and are happy under Soviet rule.)

Downtown Streets Thronged With Women Inspired by Cold Spell to Do Shopping Early

CROWDED SHOPPING district today in Boston attested the invigorating reaction that Greater Boston women got from the cold snap which went below freezing in the city proper and near zero in suburbs. Miss Mae Harvey was one of the thousands waiting at the corners for traffic signals to permit crossing to the stores.

BOSTON-BOUND SHOPPERS had suggestions galore for Christmas gifts to their children as the snow and ice covered streets brought out the youngsters with skates and sleds. Here was a typical scene, snapped in Cambridge, with Eleanor, 10, and Caroline, 6, of Tremont st., claiming to be the first out on runners in this city.

MRS. C. FOGHERTY MRS. M. CASEY MRS. R. HICKS

WITH HEADS UP, cheeks aglow, eyes sparkling, this veritable army corps of the fair sex marched with graceful strides into the shopping districts. Certainly, no such vigor was manifested today in the shopping centers of the far south and west coast—another tribute to the invigorating effect of a New England cold snap. Not all were shoppers that were reflected onto the plates of the Boston Evening American's cold weather photographer this morning. Among them were girls bound for their offices, no less pepped up by the cold breath of Boreas. runners in that city.

LADY ASTOR FOR VIRGINIA FIRST

London, Nov. 28 (AP)—Viscountess Astor, the former Nancy Langhorne, told the House of Commons today she is "still a passionate Virginian" for all her British citizenship.

Nationality, said she, in a debate on a bill to permit women marrying foreigners to choose whether they shall retain British citizenship or take that of their husbands, is an individual matter that women should be permitted to decide for themselves.

"Men will never be free until women are free," she said. "To my mind, being very fond of men, I am so interested in their moral and social progress that I want to free women."

Some of her statements were challenged.

"You certainly get a lot of license," said one member.

"There is a lot of license I'd like to take away," she retorted.

"In the name of liberty?" she was asked.

"No, in the name of sobriety," she replied.

26 Snooping Days Before Christmas

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

That's over. Now we go back to our normal pursuits that lead to so many indictments.

It required a presidential nomination to make the boys give us a 24-hour armistice.

But we've got to have a Thanksgiving Day to let the machine guns cool off.

Crime isn't so bad in America. It's the investigations that are giving this country a bad name.

The nation's biggest business men are on a board that will study racketeering.

So it looks like big business will get bigger.

Our next big meal will be on Christmas. We can fill in the next month with apples.

Yesterday was a good day. Everybody had turkey and even Ethel Barrymore forgot to have her picture taken with a piece of Melba toast and an olive.

We're over the hill. All we've got to do is to hang on going around the curves, make our investigations milder and pull Sen. Borah away from that third session.

Canadian Flier Goes Far North, Seeking Burke

Vancouver, B. C., Nov. 28 (AP)—E. L. Wasson, aviator, accompanied by an experienced woodsman, presumably was somewhere near the headwaters of the Liard river in northern British Columbia today hunting for traces of Capt. E. J. A. Burke, Canadian flier, and two companions, whose abandoned plane was sighted in that region recently. The Burke party has been missing since October 11.

Wasson left White Horse, Yukon Territory, yesterday by airplane, expecting to land on a frozen lake and mush 15 miles to where he previously sighted the Burke plane.

The flier and the woodsman carried provisions for four days. They said they would stop at Indian camps and inquire for news of the three missing men.

Will Hays Off on Honeymoon

Washington, Nov. 28 (US)—Mrs. Jessie Herron Stutesman, widow of James F. Stutesman, former United States minister to Bolivia, was married last night to Will H. Hays, czar of the motion picture industry, former postmaster-general and former chairman of the Republican national committee.

2 Men, One Blind, Hike 2200 Miles

Miami, Fla., Nov. 28 (AP)—J. D. Lambert, a blind man, and Roma Kintz began a 1,500-mile hike from Akron to Florida one warm day last May. They have just reached here. The journey was extended to 2,200 miles by detours. They trundled a 450-pound cart containing cooking utensils and camping equipment.

Two U. S. Airmen Detained by Mexico

Mexico City, Nov. 28 (AP)—The department of communications announced today that two American airplane pilots, one of whose names was given as "Shutt," had been detained at San Luis Potosi for taking off from Valbuena Field here without a permit. PUBLICITY SNAG TO ARMS PACT

Geneva, Nov. 28 (AP)—Publicity for land war materials today again proved a stumbling block for the preparatory disarmament commission in drawing a general disarmament convention. After a majority of the commission had disclosed it opposed an exchange of information regarding materials in reserve, it adopted a French formula providing for an annual report of expenditures upon land material. This solution was unacceptable to the United States, which favors full publicity for materials both in service and in stock.

In voting against the French proposal, Hugh S. Gibson, United States representative, was joined by Italy, Sweden, Holland, Spain, Turkey and Russia.

Supporting France in opposing direct publicity for reserve stocks by tabulation for all the French Allies were Japan, Peru, Persia, and Norway.

The United States held that the proposal as adopted was entirely inadequate. Japan and the French group protested that a full exchange of information on war stocks would be giving away defense secrets in prejudice to national security.

His Own Epitaph Read at Funeral of Editor

Bridgeport, Ct., Nov. 28 (AP)—An epitaph written by him shortly before his death was read today at the funeral of Richard Howell, editor of the Bridgeport Herald the last 40 years.

The epitaph, read by the Rev. E. J. Craft of Christ Episcopal Church, follows:

"I want no crape to hang upon the door when I die;
"I want no bell to toll the way
where I lie;
"I want no sorrowful prayers
upraised to Him on high;
"I want no heart to sob nor any heart to cry.
"I want the flowers, the bees, the birds, to be around the day I go;
"I want a bird to sing his song of evening soft and low;
"I want a bee to buzz around the place I rest;
"I want a flower to bloom upon the mound atop my breast."

COAL IS DUMPED IN PARLOR

Two tons of soft coal was dumped into the living room of Mrs. S. Finkelstein's home, 45 Wenonah st., Roxbury, today, when a hoist slipped off the wheels of a truck delivering coal.

Mrs. Finkelstein had ordered the coal, but expected it to be delivered in the cellar. She lives on the first floor and, when the driver backed the truck toward the cellar, the hoist slipped and the entire load crashed through the living room window, ruining the rug and several pieces of furniture.

When Two Tons Pay a Surprise Call

Miss Estelle Sadowski, 22, of New Britain, was fatally injured when a machine crashed into a fence and overturned.

Fear Missing Teacher Kidnaped and Slain

Fort Morgan, Colo., Nov. 28 (AP)—Discovery of her suitcase ten miles east of Fort Morgan stimulated efforts of officers today in their search for Miss Enid Marriott, missing school teacher.

SIX ARE SAVED IN MIDOCEAN

New Orleans, Nov. 28 (AP)—The story of a heroic battle with the sea was brought here today with arrival of the tanker Murex, which rescued Capt. Thomas Douglas and crew of five from the sinking schooner Ronald M. Douglas in a terrific storm in mid-Atlantic.

The schooner left Cadiz October 20 with a cargo of salt for Newfoundland. She ran into a full gale with mountainous seas November 12 when the voyage was half completed.

"For 14 years I have crossed the North Atlantic back and forth for a total of 64 times," Capt. Douglas said, "but never in all that time have I seen a sea like that we fought."

The battle continued four days, until Nov. 16, when the sinking schooner was sighted by the Murex.

Rockland, Me., Nov. 28 — Dr. Roland J. Wasgatt of this city, father of Wesley Wasgatt, missing Dartmouth student, has not as yet received any word from him, beyond the fact that a young man, answering to his description, purchased a ticket for New York at White River Junction, the night he went away.

During last summer's vacation he was employed on a state highway project in Wyoming, and it is thought by some that he may have gone there.

Dawes representing, respectively, the British and American Legion.

Sand From Sahara Showers on Paris

Paris, Nov. 28 (AP)—A sandstorm, quite common in the Sahara but hitherto unheard of in France, struck Paris today. The northern part of the city was especially affected and pedestrians, automobiles and roof tops were powdered with sand. Meteorological experts said the sand had been carried all the way across the Mediterranean by a southwesterly wind.

Police Sergeant Is Pastor at Night

STARS SIGNING FOR BASKET FUND SHOW

At the Keith-Boston Theater.

Midnight of Monday, Dec. 15.

For the Christmas Basket Fund of the Boston Evening American.

And what a show it's going to be!

Already the Christmas Basket Fund editor has received the assurance of Goodfellows like Harry Rice, manager of the Keith-Boston Theater (formerly the Keith-Albee), and Al Duffy of the Shubert Theater that everything within their power will be done to stage the best midnight show ever for needy families.

Ruth Etting, vaudeville star, is signed up for the super-sales force which will sell box and loge seats to prominent citizens of Boston.

Miss Etting will arrive in town tomorrow and after her first performance at the Keith-Boston she will report for duty to the Christmas Basket Fund Editor.

And maybe after she has sold all the higher-priced seats she will sit in the box office of the Keith-Boston to sell the one dollar tickets.

Harry Rice notified the Boston Evening American today that the Keith-Boston will donate the theater and all its staff to the Basket Fund without charge, for the big show.

SHUBERT STARS AID

Al Duffy will line up the best of Shubert artists and the Basket Fund editor will secure the aid of other well-known Boston theatrical men in putting "the biggest show of the year" over to bring Christmas cheer to the needy.

Tomorrow the Boston Evening American will print a great deal more about the big show—what artists are going to appear—where you can buy your tickets and other details.

Remember, it's going to be the best show you ever witnessed. And, in addition to that, you'll know on Christmas morning that every penny of your money is spreading happiness and relief to some poor child that had given up all hope of having a visit from Santa Claus.

BRING A FRIEND

You Goodfellows who have been so generous in the past to the Boston Evening American Christmas Fund will please give a thought to the fact that this year is tougher than ever on many little folks. That's why you are asked to redouble your splendid efforts to help and bring your friends into the Goodfellow ranks.

If you can't go to the big midnight show you can help by sending your contribution and your name to the Christmas Basket Fund Department, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston.

The Christmas Basket Fund supplements, this year, the work of the Boston Evening American's Helping Hand department, which has been busy for some weeks past in mercy work, collecting clothes and obtaining quick relief for many needy and shivering families.

Much more than that already collected will be necessary to supply the wants of families that otherwise would go hungry on this Christmas Day in 1930, but no matter how small your donation is, it will be acceptable.

Moultonboro, N. H., Nov. 28—Miss Eleanor Davis, 18, who won the title of "New Hampshire's prettiest girl," and who has figured prominently in the news of the last few years as a fire heroine and victim of a kidnaping, was married Nov. 17, to Herbert Tilton, 20-year-old farmer, her next door neighbor.

Miss Davis and Tilton were married at Tamworth, the Rev. Melvin Sweet officiating, and held the marriage secret until the return was filed here with Town Clerk Edward Goss.

'SPENDING WILL AID MORE THAN SAVING NOW'

Small sums which are accumulated to help the needy through skimping and saving in household expenses would have much greater effect in spreading prosperity if, instead, they were put into general circulation through purchases of goods ordinarily bought in normal times.

This was the opinion expressed to the Massachusetts Emergency Committee on Unemployment today by Gifford K. Simonds, saw and steel manufacturer, in a letter outlining his views as to how employment conditions may be improved.

"Instead of stressing the necessity of spending an extra dollar, I believe emphasis should be laid on the fact that we should spend the ordinary dollar," he wrote.

"If we do this for the purchase of furniture, radios, clothes, hats, dresses, shoes, books and everything that makes life desirable, persons who can spend will feel that their jobs are more or less secure and I think more real good will follow than by the turning over of charity dollars to help in individual cases."

Boston Man's Suit Fixes Receivership

New York, Nov. 28 (AP)—Receivership for John Monroe & Co., brokerage house with offices here and in France, was made permanent today by Federal Judge Coleman. Liabilities total $5,910,000 and assets are approximately $7,100,000. The Irving Trust Co. was recently named temporary receiver on application of Charles W. Greenough of Boston.

Suspect Freed in Sachs Gem Murder

Providence Nov. 28—Held 24 hours for questioning in connection with the murder and robbery of Nathan A. Sachs, New York diamond merchant, at Springfield, an unidentified constable of East Providence was released this afternoon. State and local police and private detectives who grilled him said he had no knowledge of the crime.

Dog's Loyalty to Master Proved Thrice More

The bond of loyalty and affection that holds a dog to a man and a man to a dog, even in death, formed the foundation for three stories sent out today by the Associated Press.

The first was from Baltimore, where Miller Henderson, training for the Audley Farm racing stables, on the coldest Thanksgiving in Maryland history, left the hospital he entered two weeks ago to go to the side of his 14-year-old English setter, Beaver.

Paralyzed and dying, having refused to eat since its master entered the hospital for an operation, Beaver licked Henderson's hand. Henderson fainted and was rushed back to the hospital.

At Princeton, Ky., Given Oliver, 24, a farmer, went rabbit hunting with his two hounds and was killed by the accidental discharge of his shotgun in the woods. While one dog stood guard over the body the other went back through the woods to the Oliver farm and howled so long that members of the family finally followed him to his dead master.

The barking of his dog through the night led to the discovery of the body of August Bengston, 50, at Phelps, N. Y. Apparently frozen to death, he had fallen and been covered by snow. The dog remained by his side through the storm until its howls brought a neighbor at daybreak.

Porto Rico Suspends 150 Striking Students

San Juan, Porto Rico, Nov. 28 (AP)—About 150 high school students were suspended today by the commissioner of education as the result of a strike Nov. 19, anniversary of the discovery of Porto Rico by Christopher Columbus. Flashlight Gives Sec. Adams a Scare

Washington, Nov. 28 (AP) The flare of flashlight surprised Secretary Adams today as he balanced a tray of food on one hand and groped in his pocket for 36 cents with the other. The Cabinet officer lunches frequently at the Navy cafeteria with hundreds of department clerks and today the cameramen lay in wait for him at the cashier's desk.

His luncheon consisted of pork and beans, rolls, a pint of milk and a chocolate sundae.

Beer Stores Will Be Closed to Save Money

Moose Jaw, Sask, Nov. 28 (AP)—The liquor board plans to close 25 beer stores in Saskatchewan before the end of the year. The Saskatchewan Prohibition League asked that government control be suspended during the economic depression by closing all liquor and beer stores.

SIX TRAPPED IN BANK HOLDUP; ONE SHOT

Bloomingdale, N. J., Nov. 28 (AP)—One of six men believed by police to have been planning a holdup of the First National Bank was shot today. Armed guards hiding near the bank captured the six.

A car bearing the license number of a machine that had carried several suspicious characters through the borough in recent days drew up a few blocks from the bank.

The six men left the car and one of the officers, who said he saw guns in their hands, opened fire. State Trooper Meade shot one in the body and the other five surrendered. Police believe they are the men who held up the People's Bank and stole $27,000 in Hawthorne Wednesday, and who robbed the Merchants Trust Co. on Sept. 10.

Officers had watched the Bloomingdale bank since four men entered it last week and bought money orders after walking around the bank, apparently studying its arrangement.

Father, 4 Daughters Flee Blazing Home

Lowell, Nov. 28—Myron Wightman and four grown daughters were forced to flee into the cold today when fire gutted a kitchen and two bedrooms of their home at 94 Cashin st., on the Chelmsford line. Two alarms brought apparatus on a two-mile run. The blaze started from an overheated stovepipe in the kitchen, according to fire officials. The loss was $2000.

Earle Sande Makes Debut as Singer

Washington, Nov. 28 — Earle Sande, the famous jockey, is developing a rich tenor voice, and made his debut before the Kiwanis Club of Alexandria, Va., Wednesday night. He sang "Mother Machree" and "Bird Songs at Eventide" to an enthusiastic audience.

Sande has been studying for three years with Miss Estelle Wentworth, a Washington voice teacher, who accompanied him on the piano.

League Agreed on Tariff Reduction

Geneva, Nov. 28 (AP)—The second conference of the League of Nations for concerted economic action of member nations closed today with delegates admitting that its results were not remarkable. Chairman H. Colijn of Holland said the one ray of hope surviving the conference was in the promise of the governments to seek tariff reduction by means of bilateral negotiations.

FIRES SWEEP 2 MAINE TOWNS

Portland, Me., Nov. 28 (AP)—Smouldering ruins of two disastrous fires in small Maine communities were all that remained today of property valued at $180,000.

Flames raged through the $100,000 Sprucewold Lodge in Boothbay Harbor last night and 300 firemen and volunteers were unable to stay their progress until the summer hotel, said to be the largest log cabin in the world, had burned to the ground.

Six buildings, two of them residences, were consumed by flames in North Windham early yesterday. The fire, which threatened the entire town of three hours, made five families homeless and caused damage of $80,000.

The Sprucewold fire assumed menacing proportions soon after it was discovered. One hundred small cabins, a 30-car garage and an annex were clustered about the lodge. Volunteers were able to save these.

R. R. HEADS PLAN TO RUN BUSES

New York, Nov. 28 (AP)—A legislative program designed to eliminate what it considers unfair restrictions on railroads, is being drafted by the American Association of Railway Executives.

One proposed act would compel the oil industry to divest itself of a $400,000,000 investment in oil pipe lines that now cross much of the United States.

Under the commodities clause of the interstate commerce act, interstate transport by the railroads of any commodity other than timber in which it is directly or indirectly interested, is forbidden.

The railroads also will seek regulation of freight and passenger-carrying bus lines and authority to operate such lines themselves. They will urge extension of the power of the Interstate Commerce Commission over coast steamship lines, the standardization of coastal steamship requirements and amendment of the Panama Canal act to allow railroads to operate steamship lines coastally.

Town's Only Bank Closes

Benton, Ill., Nov. 28 (INS)—The First National Bank of Benton closed its doors today. Slow collections and heavy withdrawals are blamed. The closing deprived Benton of its only bank.

Says "Female Mind" Gone With Education

Editor Boston American:

Is there any such thing today as the "female mind?"

Some years ago, this term used to be flung at women when they gave their views on certain topics of which men claimed they were past masters. But higher education, cultivation of the mind, is more important for women today than for men.

When you come to think of it, a large part of the masculine activity is merely physical. A woman, more often forced to be alone, realizes time must wear upon her nerves. Married women want to work at something. More and more the field lies open for the mind of woman to glean all it can. Her mind is responding most eagerly. There is no such thing today as a female mind. Married women work today not for money merely, but for their own work, for the sake of personal expression to show what they can do with their educational background. You cannot hold down an educated woman today to kitchen duties. Women are using their minds today and they admire a man who uses his mind.

MRS. H. L. LEVINSON.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

Editor Boston American:

I have just finished reading the program, the "credo" of the Boston Evening American as carried daily on the editorial page under the heading "The Hearst Papers Advocate."

I believe this to be progressive, inspiring and fool-proof. If the upper and lower branches of Congress will only carry out these suggestions we shall have a very happy nation.

Violation of No. 1 courts disaster. Fruition in No. 9 would be a stroke of statesmanship. Bringing about No. 13 would mean Utopia instead of the present chaos.

"Captains of Industry" Hold Key to Jobless Situation

Editor Boston American:

What is meant by prosperity is the exploitation of the masses by the captains of industry resulting in the current depression.

Now, not satisfied with having caused this abject poverty and woeful suffering among the rabble, instead of attempting to relieve it, those responsible, except a few millionaires with philanthropic ideas, are taking the attitude, "There, we have put you in your hole, now try and get out of it."

It is not up to the poor common American to improve conditions—he is helpless to do so—rather is it up to those multimillionaires, notably some of whom are very high in national office who successfully indulged their whim of short selling in Wall Street, playing with the food of the people, paring their expenses down to the last nickel, thus curtailing the buying power of the hoi-polloi the while reaping unreasonable profits for themselves.

In fact "killing the goose that laid the golden egg" seems an appropriate simile.

Let the big fellows open up their purse strings. It is their duty to their country, and the sooner they do so the better for all.

OLIVER HEINZ.

1000 More Soldier Bonus Signatures Promised

Editor Boston American:

Being a constant reader of your paper, have read of a Mr. Arthur Peabody, who your paper states has 175,000 signatures for the payment of the soldiers' bonus.

I would like to inform you that, if you would tell him to send papers to me at National Soldiers' Home, Togus, Me., I could send him one more thousand signatures promptly.

GEORGE F. JOHNSON.

Sherwood Eddy's Article on Russia is Praised

Editor Boston American:

Those who failed to read the Boston Sunday Advertiser, especially Sherwood Eddy's description of conditions in Russia and the probabilities of the future, also the cartoon and editorial showing the ants drifting down the river on the log, missed a great chance to educate themselves on the political and industrial economy of the world.

Communism is here; it has been a force in the world for thousands of years whether under that title or some other name. It is here to stay; it is spreading and growing stronger throughout the world, especially since the World War. It cannot be suppressed but it does not follow that it is going to destroy all forms of religion and political and industrial systems.

Nevertheless, every Nation should recognize the truth in the words of Mr. Eddy, "Russia is portent, vast and challenging." History teaches that all great nations and all wise men have recognized the wisdom of compromise when suppression seemed impossible.

Let's get together and be friends, remembering that friendship has a finer sound than gold. Surely we are not drifting down on a log like the ants. Undoubtedly, the representative government and great captains of industry of this great nation will not allow the good old U. S. A. to drift to destruction.

Massachusetts Income Tax System Assailed

Editor Boston American:

Your recent editorial wherein you said that the income tax system of Massachusetts is a swindle is perfectly right. Downright robbery would be a better name. Owning a few shares of Canadian bank stock with a small income of less than $200 a year, I have to pay 6 per cent to the State, am doing it today and had to pay it all through the war. This is the case of a widower with two minor children working three days a week for less than $13 and paying a co-operative bank mortgage. Not one cent of American money invested in these shares so why should I pay more income tax than the big fellows that make $4000 or $5000 per year and with exemptions, pay nothing.

Attacks Drys for Attempt to Coerce President

Editor Boston American:

Appreciating the fairness of your paper, may I ask space for the following?

Not being content with fostering an iniquitous prohibition law upon a free and liberty loving people, the Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals now have the effrontery to shake their finger of tyranny and attempt to coerce our President into acquiescence of their demands.

Now if that is not the very essence of despotism and tyrannical rule pray tell me what is?

We all are patiently awaiting the report of the Wickersham commission in their findings on the prohibition question, and if in the event they recommend modification or any other measure tending to release the strangle hold the prohibition law has on the American people, it will accomplish at least two things, namely, provide work for hundreds of thousands of men and women, restore tranquility to our country, and banish the bootlegger and speakeasy.

Never in the history of America has such a display of invasion upon the rights of the people been made. Now if we freeborn American citizens wish to preserve our independence and perpetuate for the generations to come, that precious freedom for which the flower of our country fought, bled and died this is the opportune time to strike and strike hard and keep on striking against the dictatorial power of prohibitionists.

Statue of Buddha in Strange Surroundings

Editor Boston American:

Strange things seen in Boston.

A large statue of Buddha in the window of religious book store on Beacon st.

A sign in the West End:

"Windows Cleaned While You Wait."

Fourteen signs in different sections of the city in windows of tradesmen:

"We Lead, Others Follow."

Another sign in the North End:

"Baby Carriages To Let."

One in a back yard:

"Keep Your Children Out of the Back Yard."

In a South End store:

"If You Don't See What You Want, Ask For It."

Also in the South End:

"Apartments To Let, No Children."

VICE PROBE UP TO ROOSEVELT

New York, Nov. 28 (AP)—Because of testimony as to corruption, demands went to Gov. Roosevelt today for a non-partisan legislative investigation of the city administration.

Norman Thomas, leader of the Socialist party, and Paul Blanchard, secretary of the City Affairs Committee, a civilian organization, have written the governor at Warm Springs, Ga.

Declaring that "our city government is shot through and through with corruption," Blanchard in his letter referred to evidence of sale of positions on the bench and police graft from vice.

A jury was discharged when it failed to return a verdict in the trial of Martin J. Healy and Thomas A. Tommaney, former city employes and Tammany figures, charged with accepting a $10,000 bribe to secure the appointment of George F. Ewald as magistrate in 1927. The date for their re-trial was set for Dec. 8.

Charles C. Burlingham, president of the Bar Association, said disbarment proceedings would be instituted against lawyers accused of acting with police and bondsmen in practicing extortion in vice cases.

2 Holiday Feasts Precede Execution

Chicago, Nov. 28 (AP)—Two Thanksgiving dinners were eaten by Leon Brown, negro, before he was executed today for his part in the murder of Martin French, bank guard slain in an attempted bank robbery in 1928. A goose dinner on the holiday noon was followed by a turkey dinner just before midnight.

Man Freed From Jail to Save Son's Life

Chicago, Nov. 28 (AP)—Released from jail long enough to go to a hospital to undergo a blood transfusion to save the life of his nine-month-od son, Arthur Noeth, 28 back behind the bars, was happy today over a physician's report the child's condition was better.

Prison Cooking Best, Say 75 Men in 'Alimony Row'

Chicago, Nov. 28 (AP)—A woman reporter for a Chicago newspaper visited the county jail yesterday which, as everybody knows, was Thanksgiving Day, to get the reactions of the 75 men in "alimony row" and reported back that she heard "no bemoanings for the kind of meal my wife used to cook."

The reasons were large portions of roast goose and other delicacies.

"I hope," said one inmate, "that my wife puts me right back when I get out."

Beaver College Gets Million

Philadelphia, Nov. 28 (AP)—A $1,000,000 fund left as a "foundation for the education of females in or adjacent to Philadelphia," by Dr. William Curran, who died 50 years ago, has been awarded to Beaver college, Jenkingtown, near here.

Helping Hand Gets More Piteous Pleas

Children hungry and poorly clad mothers frantically trying to feed them and keep them warm, fathers desperately searching for work

That is the story told in hundreds of letters received daily by the Helping Hand Department of the Boston Evening American.

Their pathetic appeals have received generous responses. Aid comes to them from people of means and even from persons who are only a little more fortunate than those whom they befriend.

But still the appeals come in. There is much more work to be done. Much more clothing needed and much more food. Read some of the letters and help in whatever way you can.

MOTHER WANTS WORK
(Refer to Case 64)

Can the Boston Evening American, which has helped so many of its readers, please help me to obtain work at home. My husband is out of work, and I am not strong enough to go to work.

I have three children, the oldest, six years, goes to school. The others are three and one years old. I don't ask for charity, all I ask is a chance, for their sake, to obtain work, in the line of sewing, fancy, plain or crocheting, infant's wear or otherwise. I am handy at this. It's just breaking my heart to see my baby cry for milk, and I can't get it for him. God bless you and your wonderful work.

This woman lives in Woburn. Aid can be given her by calling the Boston Evening American Helping Hand, Liberty 4000, and asking for Case 64.

JOB WILL SAVE SIX
(Refer to Case 63)

I am an old reader of the Boston American and can appreciate all the good your paper is doing. We have a family of four small children. My husband has been out of work for 13 weeks and has been hunting for work for days with no results. He is a machinist by trade. He is 29 years and a good, steady worker. Our children's ages are: girls, five and six years; boys, three and one year four months.

I will appreciate any kind of help at this time. It is sure getting to hard times for us.

I thank you for what you can do and God bless you in this helpful work.

This woman lives in Everett. Anyone wishing to investigate this case may learn the address by calling the Boston Evening American Helping Hand, Liberty 4000, and asking for Case 63.

WORK, FOOD OR SHOES
(Refer to Case 62)

I have been reading your paper quite regularly and have seen about your helping other people, so I am writing to find out if you would kindly help me out.

I am out of work and haven't anything to eat. My wife is under the doctor's care. I have a little boy who hasn't got any shoes. He is six years old and goes to school.

I would be thankful for anything that you could do for me. Hoping to hear from you very soon.

This man lives in Chelsea. Anyone wishing to investigate this case may learn the address by calling the Boston Evening American Helping Hand, Liberty 4000, and asking for Case 62.

SIX NEED CLOTHING
(Refer to Case 61)

Will you please help us a little for my father is out of work and we all need clothing badly. There are five children. I am the oldest, 12 years old, and my name is Dorothy. One of my brothers is 10 years old. He needs a pair of pants and a coat. My next brother is seven years old. He needs underwear and stockings. My sister, four years old, needs underwear and a few dresses. My baby brother is eight months old and needs clothing of any kind. For myself I need stockings size nine. I hope I am not asking for too much.

This girls lives in Cambridge. Anyone wishing to aid may call the Boston Evening American Helping Hand, Liberty 4000, and refer to Case 61.

CHILDREN IN WANT
(Refer to Case 60)

I am sending you this letter for the sake of my three children—girls—who have nothing to eat and little to wear. My heart is breaking for them. Please help us. My husband is a painter and has had no work for almost three months, so we've used all we had saved. I pray God to help us through you. We need food. There is nothing to eat in the house. My husband needs shoes, size 8-9, and underclothes. I use anything, size 44-46; shoes, 5½ E. My oldest girl is 10 years, shoes ½, and she needs rubbers and overshoes as she has to walk more than 2½ miles over country roads to school. The other little girls are five and six years. I also have a little boy that is sick in the hospital.

This woman lives in Foxboro. Anybody wishing to aid may call the Boston Evening American Helping Hand, Liberty 4000, and refer to Case 60.

Woman's Axe Fells Invader of Home

Cleveland, Nov. 28 (AP)—A prowler stuck his head through a window in the home of Mrs. Beatrice Weaver and told her "I'm going to kill you," she reported to police last night. Reaching for her axe, she planted a smart tap on the invader's skull. He fell back out of the window unconscious and police hauled him to a hospital.

Ewald Graft Case Ends in Deadlock

New York, Nov. 28 (US)—The jury in the case of Martin J. Healy, Tammany leader, and Thomas T. Tommany, his political aide, accused of accepting $10,000 for procuring the appointment of George F. Ewald as magistrate, was unable to agree.

The jury was discharged yesterday after deliberating from noon Wednesday. A motion for retrial was taken under advisement.

Belgian Reds Lay Flood to Government

Brussels, Nov. 28 (AP)—Communists have launched a pamphlet campaign in an effort to arouse victims of the recent floods to agitation against the government. Posters in the inundated area charge negligence in the provision of adequate dikes while "millions are spent arming forts and buying machine guns."

Ex-Fascist Leader Jailed for 5 Years

Milan, Italy, Nov. 28 (AP)—Prof. Ernesto Belloni, former governor of Milan, expelled from the Fascist party last month, today was sentenced to "confino"—exile to a penal colony—for five years. Bartelo Belotti, former minister in the Nitti cabinet, got the same sentence.

DO-X WILL HOP TO SO. AMERICA

Lisbon, Nov. 28—The German Dornier seaplane, DO-X, which arrived here yesterday, will fly to New York by way of South America it was definitely decided today in instructions from Berlin.

Clarence Schildhauer, American pilot, said a direct flight across the North Atlantic to New York will probably be made next year. The pilot declared the ship which was flown here yesterday from Corunna, had behaved splendidly. He attributed a report that he had resigned as pilot to expiration of his five months' leave of absence from his American employers who have notified the Dornier works that he cannot be spared any longer.

The change of route and the insistence of Schildhauer's employers that he return to the United States probably mean he will not be the pilot on the South Atlantic hop.

DO-X is expected to fly to Cadiz late today for overhauling of her motors in the Spanish Dornier factory.

Italian Deputies Cut Their Own Pay

COTTON MEN ASK FREE REIN

New Orleans, Nov. 28 (AP)—A governmental policy of "hands off" in the cotton market would bring relief to the present cotton situation, the New Orleans cotton exchange said today in its annual report.

"With the constant interference by Congress and the operations of the Farm Board, the life of speculation and investment has been more or less stifled," the report says.

"Private initiative, which successfully handled the monster crops of 1925 and 1926, and even far more difficult situations can do the same with the present situation, provided the Government affords relief by amendment of the farm relief measure or some assurance of hands off."

KNOW REAL TOBACCO WHEN YOU SMELL IT?

TRY THIS!

In fairness to your throat, dear Sir or Lady, please try this:

Open up a pack of OLD GOLDS and take a good sniff. You'll get just the true aroma of real tobacco . . . tobacco at its best.

You may like soda-fountain sweetenings on Sundaes or Waffles. But the vapors of such pungent flavorings, when burned in a cigarette are powerful throat-irritants. OLD GOLDS are just fine tobacco . . . with a honey-smoothness supplied by Nature.

That's the reason for their throat-ease. That's the "why" of "not a cough in a carload."

OLD GOLD NOT A COUGH IN A CARLOAD

LIBERAL VOTES HELP UPHOLD M'DONALD

London, Nov. 28 (AP)—The alliance between the British Labor Government and the Liberal party held firm today and the Government, backed in the Commons by a majority of 60, on a Conservative motion of censure, crossed empire free trade from its list of immediate worries.

Plain speaking, a personal encounter which in other days would have passed for a challenge to a duel, and a sharp demarcation of protectionists and government free traders marked the debate on the motion of censure, which the House rejected 299 to 234.

The motion was for the House to censure the MacDonald government for "failure to formulate any effective proposals for extension of empire trade and for refusal to consider offers made by the dominions."

STRIKES TORY LORD.

In the course of vituperative debate, C. J. Simmons, Labor, struck Lord Winterton, Conservative, on the face with an order paper. Winterton took no notice of the blow.

Stanley Baldwin, Conservative chief, led the attack on Prime Minister MacDonald, saying that if Great Britain did not take steps to get a sense of economic unity inside the empire, danger to that unity was great.

J. H. Thomas, secretary of state for the Dominions, said the Government was being criticized for not having examined the Dominions' offer which Mr. Baldwin knew perfectly well he could not have accepted himself.

SNOWDEN HITS CANADA

Philip Snowden, chancellor of the exchequer, charged that the Canadian premier had "prepared" for the imperial conference before he left Canada by making large additions to Canadian duties on British goods.

Throughout the Labor government's exposition of its case cries of "withdraw," "shame" and "dissolve" came from the opposition benches.

Between 250 and 300 aliens will be deported.

Warring Orangemen of U. S. Make Peace

Philadelphia, Nov. 28 (AP).—Peace among the Orangemen in this country, where there have been two lodges, was signalized last night by a banquet. John McClintock of this city was chosen grand master of the organization, to be known as the Loyal Orange Institution of the United States.

Resignations were tendered by the Rev. William Snow, of Boston, supreme grand master of the Loyal Orange Institution, and David McWatters, of Detroit, head of the International Orange Association.

Gray Krimmer Tops Chic Black Coat

By ANN ARDEN

HAVE YOU, by any chance, been following the rise of gray in the mode? Here and there women who are not afraid to choose the exclusive color have been using gray alone or with contrast. It seems to accent the pink and whiteness of a youthful skin, and to blend gently with the not so young coloring too.

GRAY FUR trimming a coat gives the definite contrast so smart this season, and suggests possibilities for very effective complementing. Since the coat is the nucleus of your entire wardrobe, it should be well cut, of fine fabric, and of a style that will not wane with the year. Around it select your frocks, your accessories. Avoid tiresome repetition of color—it is not necessary in this age of startling color contrast.

THE COAT pictured is fashioned of the ultra smart black broadcloth, semi-fitted, with wide wrap-around front, and low-placed side flares. A tie belt of the material marks the natural waistline. Gray krimmer forms the upstanding shawl collar, which may be folded close about the throat; the same fur is set on outer edge of sleeve in cuffs pointed to the elbow. A hat of gray felt tops this, and black gloves and pumps are worn.

FOR WHILE the costume that is gray from top to bottom is not smart, you might wear a black or a gray frock with the gray trimmed coat, and add the smart new note of a silk scarf in gray and canary yellow.

A NEW manner has been found for wearing the triangular scarf. It is worn by smart Parisiennes in the manner of the cowl neckline, tied in the back. Not only over frocks, but over coats as well, does it appear in this manner. Striking patterns are employed for some of the scarfs, while many of them remain quite plain with a simple applique of color or a bit of piping.

GRAY KRIMMER for trimming, or fashioning a flared and fitted coat is smart, practical and flattering, and may be repeated in the hat worn.

ANN ARDEN will answer questions concerning clothes, social customs or fashions generally. Address your questions to the Boston Evening American or the Boston Sunday Advertiser or to Station WLEX.

Midinettes' Parade Halts Queen's Shopping Tour

By BARON GEORGE WRANGEL

Universal Service Special Cable

Paris, Nov. 28—Even the Queen of Spain was constrained to give up her shopping this week when the Midinettes of Paris asserted their annual right to celebrate the day of Saint Catherine—the one day of the year consecrated to the hopes of young women as yet unmarried.

Her majesty arrived on the eve of the celebration accompanied by her daughters, the Infantas Beatrice and Maria Christina—both, incidentally unmarried. The queen and her daughters accepted the inevitable with good grace, and like others, put off their fashion needs for another 24 hours.

AMERICAN NOTABLES

Indeed, the world fashionables are most busy in Paris these days completing their winter wardrobes.

Among those seen teaing between fittings was the Princess of Thurn-und-Taxis, the former Eleanor Nicolls of Pittsburgh. She appeared stunning in a dark blue gown trimmed at the collar and cuffs with three stripes of white pique cloth. Her cloche hat was decorated with a diamond bar pin and she wore a full-length seal skin coat.

Mrs. Claude Grahame White, the former Ethel Levy, is also in Paris shopping. She was a tea guest of Mrs. Simon Brandt of London. Mrs. White was in a heavy silver threaded blouse and a black velvet skirt and jacket. Mrs. Brandt wore a black chiffon gown and a full-length coat trimmed with a high collar of silver fox.

MRS. DREXEL RETURNS

An absentee welcomed back to the fold over the week-end was Mrs. John R. Drexel, Jr., who has been confined to her suite at the Ritz suffering from eye trouble. She appeared at luncheon in a beige ensemble and occupied her usual table. With her was Mrs. Perry Belmont, who wore a black tailleur with a short, fashionably cut jacket and a red cloth hat.

The grill continues to be filled with a small fashionable crowd at noon time. Madame Paul Dubonnet, the former Jean Nash, who is expecting the stork within the next few months, entertained a small party of friends. She wore a beige ensemble, a bright blue scarf and a sapphire clasp on her beige hat.

Church to Be Dedicated

AIR SERVICE HIT AS TOO SLOW

Washington, Nov. 28 (AP)—Slow promotion in the Army Air Corps and a shortage in aircraft were cited today by F. Trubee Davison, Assistant Secretary of War for Aeronautics, as "stumbling blocks" to progress.

Davison, in his annual report, went at length into the controversy over duplications in the aerial coast defense between army and navy, describing it as "serious."

Human error, he said, was responsible for 55 per cent of air corps accidents which resulted in [illegible]2 deaths during the year. Engines and structural failures caused about 29 per cent, 13 per cent were caused by poor landing fields and bad weather, while the remaining three per cent were listed as of doubtful cause.

The previous year death had claimed a life for every 430,000 miles flown as compared for one death in every 625,000 miles this year.

PORT OF BOSTON IN REVIEW

Reporting a rough voyage the Nova Scotia, of the Furness Line, from Liverpool, by way of St. John's, Newfoundland, docked at pier 50, Mystic wharf, yesterday, before moving into her regular berth at Hoosac docks today, with 30 passengers and cargo.

Capt. Samuel Furneaux was in command. He reported storms and gales on the trip.

Among the passengers were William Howard Clapham, chief engineer on the Southern Prince, British motorship going to New York to rejoin his vessel; Mrs. Effie Reed, wife of Capt. J. A. Reed of the Prince Lines, and her son, Percy; Thomas [illegible], a marine engineer going to New York; John W. Wright, assistant purser of the Bermuda, and Mrs. Gladys Whitcher.

DIRECT SERVICE

Direct service to Port of Boston was brought about by a group of Boston importers who had shipping on the Wichita, billed from Formosa and Japan to New York, by combining and informing the authorities that they were interested in having their cargo brought directly to Boston. This was pointed out by Richard Parkhurst, secretary of the Boston Port Authority, as one of the ways in which the port can be furthered by the co-operation of importers and exporters using it. The Port Authority urges that other importers follow this example.

NEW EXPORTER

European exports of the Champion Animal Food Co. will be handled exclusively in the future through the Port of Boston. This has been decided after establishment of a Boston branch in A warehouse of the Hoosac Stores near Lechmere sq., East Cambridge. The Boston branch will serve New England, New York, Pennsylvania and New Jersey. C. F. Sarset has been appointed manager of the local branch.

Pelican Beak, Elephant Head on Relic of Ice Monster

Cordova, Alaska, Nov. 28—The lizard-like creature found in the ice of Glacier island, believed by residents to have lived in prehistoric times and to have been preserved in the glacier for thousands of years, was described by W. J. McDonald, superintendent of Chugach National Forest today.

The skeleton, which measured 24 feet, one inch, had a snout similar to the beak of a pelican, with a head shaped much like that of an elephant.

Behind the head, on each side, were flippers. The vertebrae, McDonald asserted, were three bladed and the flippers were made up of five "fingers," each "finger" having [illegible].

Here's Tip on Good Bread

While there's no denying that baker's bread is a mighty convenient blessing in this day and age, there are times when we'd like to prove to Friend Husband that we can make just as good bread as mother did.

Good bread must have a good gluten content, which it gains through the use of gluten flour. It is just about impossible to make a good loaf of bread without a good gluten flour. Bleaching destroys the gluten element in flour, and for that reason it is important to buy an unbleached flour, one that contains all the gluten and makes your bread fine grained, light, and delicate.

If you've ever visited the Martha Lee School of Practical Cookery, you know that we use a well known brand of unbleached flour for all our cooking. If you are having trouble with bread making drop me a line and perhaps I can help you.

Eat all you want, too. For the Wonder Bakers' dozen is fifteen—three more than twelve. Yes, fifteen taste-tempting rolls in every Wonder package. That's why they are called "Wonder Fiff-teens."

You'll discover many ways to serve Wonder Fiff-teens. A quick heating in your own oven will give you a new treat for tomorrow's breakfast. Spread them liberally with butter and sprinkle with cinnamon and sugar. Or serve them with jams, conserves, fresh stewed fruits. They're simply grand with apple butter!

Or toast them for tea and smother them with honey, orange or tangerine marmalade, or blackberry jam, currant jelly. And they're just the right size for generous fillings of peanut butter.

Remember, Wonder Fiff-teens are as fine a product as the famous slo-baked Wonder Bread. They're based on the good old-fashioned way to make what grandmother called "light biscuits." Enough inducement, don't you think, for you to treat your family to Wonder Fiff-teens?

New form of Chipso is champion time-saver, women say

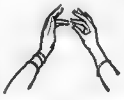
New England housewives are particular—efficient, too. That's why Chipso Granules win praise from them!

Mrs. K. S.—
"My wash is done in an hour"

"Every mother knows how hard it is to wash children's clothes. I have three or four big tubfuls of them every Monday morning—and I used to be rubbing and scrubbing away until two in the afternoon without even stopping to eat . . . Now I use Chipso Granules, and soak the clothes in those rich suds overnight. Next day—rubbing and rinsing is done in an hour!"

Mrs. J. W. M.—
"Hands are nice and soft now"

"By the time I had worked up a good suds in hot water, then scrubbed for two or three hours, my hands were a wreck. That's why I feel so grateful for the self-sudsing Chipso Granules. They not only save time, but labor—for they last till the dirt is soaked right out of the clothes. Far less rubbing—and my hands show it!"



"Still feel peppy after big washing," says Mrs. D. W., of Quincy

"Big washings" seem like trifles to the women who have discovered time-saving Chipso Granules! This new form of Chipso makes a mountain of suds instantly even without hot water! And the suds are the most lasting you have ever seen.

Let these Chipso Granules suds work for you! They'll soak dirt out of your clothes—then with a little light rubbing, your washing is done—and you feel fresh as a daisy!

Mrs. E. M.—
"Never have to scold about dishes now"

"The children don't complain about the dishes—except when we run out of Chipso Granules! They like that heaping pan of suds that the Granules make so quickly. 'We don't have to scrape dishes when we use this soap,' they boast."

Mrs. H. R. C.—
"Wonderful in washing machine"

"Two of the neighbors bought the same kind of machine I have," writes a Newton woman. "They said they had never seen such lovely-looking clothes as that machine turned out! I told them they needed more than the machine for that, though—they needed Chipso!" (Chipso flakes and granules—is by far the most popular soap for all washing machines.)

RUSSIA, ITALY JOIN TO SCARE OFF FRANCE

Berlin, Nov 28 (US)—Preoccupation over France was the important part of the conversation of Foreign Commissar Litvinoff of Russia and Foreign Minister Grandi of Italy at Milan, according to information reaching the Wilhelmstrasse today.

It was learned that the two foreign secretaries discussed what role Russia would play in case of a Franco-Italian conflict and the part Italy would take in the event of a Russo-Franco clash. The following lines of co-operation for future agreement, Universal Service learns, were suggested:

SUPPLIES FROM RUSSIA

1—Italy would pledge to take no part in any alliance or movement against the Soviet.

2—Italy, in case of a Franco-Russo conflict, would make a "peaceful demonstration" near the Franco-Italian border.

3—Russia, in the event of an Italo-Franco clash, would supply Italy with coal, oil and foodstuffs, and arrange convoy and transport for such material.

4—The Soviet would use its influence in Angora to insure close Turkish co-operation with Italy.

FEARS WAR

Russia is anxious to avoid war in order to work out the five-year plan but, like Rome, fears the possibility of armed conflict in the future.

After his Milan conversation Litvinoff returned to Geneva, which he left hastily to discuss the Turkish-Soviet situation with Rusenai Bei, the Turkish foreign minister who went to Rome yesterday.

Baruch's Southern Home Again Burns

Georgetown, S. C., Nov. 28 (AP)—For the second time within a year the palatial home of Bernard Baruch, New York financier, on his plantation here, has been destroyed by fire. The partly completed structure replacing Hobcaw Barony, destroyed by fire last hunting season, was swept by a blaze of undetermined origin last night.

THE LAST MILE -:- By Lewis Allen Browne

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Ethel Simmons poses as a most saint-like girl. Richard Walters, a skilled young mechanic, is madly in love with her because of her beauty and her seeming purity. Ethel is having an affair with rich Merton Nissinger, who tattooed his initial over her heart. Walters, in a speakeasy, overhears Nissinger boast about tattooing an "N" on every girl he makes. Ethel gets mixed up with Viola Forsaythe, a model. To help Viola get back some letters she calls at the cottage of Merton's chum, Kirk Thurber, just in time to see Viola shoot him. Ethel fears she will be dragged into it.

CHAPTER 7

"KNOW HER? I'll say I did——"

he checked himself. He didn't want to tell Ethel the truth, that she had been his girl friend at one time and that he had even tattooed an N over her heart, as he had done to Ethel.

"Why shouldn't I know her? Kirk was my pal and she had been Kirk's sweetie for a long while."

"What did you tell her about me?"

"I just told her to forget it. But I had a hunch she would talk to you about it, seeing you both were at that art institution."

"Well she did ask me if I knew you and when I denied it she laughed at me and said for me not to worry, she wouldn't tell."

"But did she spring anything about Kirk?"

"Not a word, Mert, honestly. I was awfully scared when I knew she had seen me going to the cottage."

I'm sorry—wish you'd been chummy with her. I want to get evidence enough to send her to the chair—bawling about her honor—she just killed Kirk in cold blood because he wouldn't marry her, I'm sure of it.

"Perhaps Viola believed Mr. Thurber ought to marry her, or marry someone else and yet not desert her. Gee, Mert, if you ever deserted me I'd—"

"Shoot me, eh?"

"No, myself," she lied quickly. She was too clever to say anything else.

Sent Her to Chair

"I won't, Honey. I'll be seeing you soon but right now I'm helping Arnold, the district attorney, getting evidence against that dame. God, I hope she gets the chair—or life, anyway, where she can't shoot any more good guys like Kirk."

"It was awful," Ethel agreed, feeling great relief upon finding that Nissinger hadn't the slightest suspicion that she had actually seen the murder.

They drove down to a pavilion and had luncheon. Then he took her back to the city and she went home.

Walters was coming that evening to take her out to a picture.

She didn't know quite what to do about Dick Walters. Her mother talked a great deal about him and about what a gentlemanly fellow he was.

She believed that Nissinger was quite right, just as Mabel Shelton was right—it would be better for her to marry some easy-going, simple-minded, hard working chap. It would be a sort of protection to her.

Walters was in a happy frame of mind when he called that evening. Mrs. Simmons sat on the front porch with them for a while and he announced that he had been made a foreman of the lathe room in the big machine plant where he worked.

"That's lovely, Mr. Walters. You'll probably go far and be an important executive over there before you are many years older," Mrs Simmons told him.

"Oh, I hope to—I want to get to be manager of output—it's a swell position with ten thousand a year salary! And most always if you get that job—position—you get to be made one of the vice-presidents."

"That's awfully nice, Dick—I'm proud of you really I am," Ethel said.

"I'm glad you are, Ethel—I'm certainly trying hard to get ahead and make something of myself."

He Saw Thurber

They chatted a while.

"Oh, by the way, it wasn't so long ago when I saw that Thurber chap who was killed the other day," Walter said.

"To terrible to talk about," said Mrs. Simmons. "Anyone who commits murder is crazy, in some degree or other."

"They must be. I saw Thurber in—a drug store. I was with a newspaper reporter friend. We all talked together for a while. This Thurber had a rich chap with him. He owns half the Paxton mills—think of it! His name's Nessingger—I guess he's rather sporty."

"Nessinger? What a funny name, Ethel murmured. "I never met anyone with that name."

Walters laughed dryly.

"You wouldn't meet him, Ethel, he isn't your sort, you wouldn't be seen out with him."

"Of course not, Ethel is extremely careful, it is so hard these days to know just who is all right and who isn't," her mother agreed.

"If we're going to a picture, Dick, let's start now—mother worries if I'm out late."

"Fine," he turned to her mother, "I won't keep her out late, Mrs. Simmons—I think too much of her to do that or let any harm come to her."

"I know you do—Richard."

They went to see a picture of college life. There was considerable petting in the picture.

"Getting mushy like that," Ethel said, "makes me sick. Why can't they make love in a decent sensible way?"

"Well, I suppose it's the new generation, as they call it. And that couple over there is engaged—it's all right to be a little—er—romantic and—like that, after you are engaged, isn't it?"

"I suppose so, Dick."

He looked down at her. She seemed almost ethereal, to him. He believed that he could understand her viewpoint. She was so good and so pure, so far in thought or desire from anything sexy, that she couldn't understand. Well, he would marry her, if he could, and then she would know. He wished he could take her in his arms, and kiss her right back of the ear where little tendrils of soft chestnut hair were curled. He wondered if she would scream and fight or if she would just relax in his arms. Some day, after they were engaged, he would find out—only, of course, she wouldn't fight him after they were engaged.

Timid Young Man

They stopped at their favorite drug store after the picture for ices. To Ethel's great surprise there sat Mabel Shelton and her husband.

"Hello, there, dear! Come over here," Mabel called.

They went over and Ethel introduced Walters to Mabel and her husband. Shelton knew Ethel, of course.

"So this is the timid young man," Mabel said. "I've seen him now and then when he drove Ethel out, but he always beat it. I guess he's afraid of me."

"That's right, young man—these lonesome wives are dangerous," Shelton said with a chuckle. "I'm a traveling man and have to leave the old girl lonesome now and then."

"Believe me, I do get lonesome, too," Mabel said.

Ethel nodded solemnly. "I know you do," she said.

Ethel never changed expression, but Mabel Shelton had to look away and a close observer would have noticed her face redden a little.

"We had a jolly old murder out our way the other night—that Thurber playboy seemed to have been playing around a little too careless when he tried to get too chummy with the Forsaythe girl," Shelton said.

"Yeah, I read about it—hot stuff. Suppose she'll get the chair?" Walters asked.

"Chair? Sure, overstuffed and a lot o' other furniture and some medals—perhaps a pension. She'll pull the weeps and wear dresses up to there or thereabouts——"

"Oliver! Be careful how you talk before Ethel," Mabel chided.

Mabel looked down at her plate in apparent embarrassment. No one knew of the little kick she gave Mabel.

Walters was grinning, but he pulled a sober face.

"Excuse me—forgot we had an infant in our midst," Shelton murmured and then "what I mean is she'll get the jury with her and go scot free."

"I'd hate to be in her place—she's likely to get life, anyway."

"Not a chance."

"How about hating to be in poor Thurber's place?" Mabel asked.

Walters Proposes

When Walters got Ethel home they sat on the porch for a little while as the night was warm.

Walters reached over and took her hand.

"Dear," he said, "I'm pulling down eighty a week now — and I'll be getting more. We could get along fine on that to start, and by the time there were any—if we had—what I mean is, if expenses grew, so would my salary. You know what I mean, Ethel."

"I—I perhaps—but you should not talk about such things."

"I want to marry you, dear — Oh, Ethel, won't you promise right now to be my wife? You know how much I love you and want you — will you marry me, dear?"

Ethel asks Walters to wait for his answer. See tomorrow's great installment.

CREAMY WHITE FLOUR··WITHOUT BLEACHING

CERESOTA FLOUR is creamy white because it is milled from the finest Northern Wheat. Flours made from inferior wheat must resort to bleaching to obtain a presentable color — and bleaching is often damaging to the gluten content. The safe way is to bake with Ceresota the unbleached flour, or buy Ceresota-made bread.

Logan Told Wilda Is to Be an Heiress

HOW THE STORY STARTS

Wilda Gardner, bookkeeper in a hardware store, is in love with Logan Townsend, who "has not spoken yet."

He is no Adonis, Wilda thinks, but he has a rare smile. This smile also attracts Bess Avery, a stenographer in an office near Logan's. Wilda's mother, Garcie, has been strangely distracted since the father died. He is understood to have left much money and she plans to leave the poor little cottage in which they live in Boston and get in touch with a gaier life. Wilda confesses to Logan that she perfumes her hair.

By MAY CHRISTIE

(Copyright, 1930.)

FOR A MOMENT Logan Townsend was taken aback. Wilda to have a "line"—Wilda the good pal who was always so prosaically sensible . . .

But one never knew the many facets of a woman. And everything else he'd seen of her—except maybe her brusqueness, which had sometimes been rather inopportune, and like a dash of cold water on a sentimental mood — had pleased him immensely.

She had never wanted to be made love to—either tacitly or openly. In this world of ready women that was all to the good . . . one could really have a delightful tete-a-tete with her without having what these other foolish women called their "sex appeal" dragged in, and without any sighing or simpering or drooping.

Seeking Love

All Girls He Knew

Women could be a darned bore, with their perpetual consciousness of sex . . . their inability to wait for the right one . . . their [illegible] to [illegible] long before [illegible] manhandled of them.

Why did practically all the female that he met want to be made love to? Why were they so anxious to be noticed, NOT as pals, but as 100 per cent she-women?

This, despite their vaunted independence of the male! Why, even though it was 1930 and they all called themselves ultra-modern, they were as old fashioned at heart as primitive Eve!

But Wilda's charm lay in her "difference." She could listen quietly, sympathetically, entirely naturally without any play of eyes, or hands and without any frantic peeping into mirrors or snatching for her powderpuff.

Common sense, and the ability to forget her sex for a while . . . these were tremendous attractions in any young woman.

It was really pitiful how many girls spoiled all their charm by their insistence on "chivalry," by their cat-like desire to be petted and stroked and necked—and of course flattered ad nauseum.

From which reflections it will be seen that young Mr. Logan Townsend—without being either rich or good-looking—had a strong attraction for quite a number of women.

But Wilda was the one he really liked. Darn it all, liking was rather a cold sort of a term for the way he felt about her! he told himself.

Not in the least "easy," was she? But he would follow the lead about Delilah now. He plunged right in.

"Let me be the big he-man in the story. Let me be Samson."

"And pull the temple down about a lady's ears? Ha! You wouldn't be so cruel!"

Wrong Way

The Women Do It

"No. That's the wrong way about. It's women who tear down the shrine that men set up for them. But Wilda, you—" —he moved nearer her in the lurching taxi—"if you ever cared for a man, you wouldn't smash his dreams—now would you, Wilda?"

Her breath caught suffocatingly. He meant . . . himself . . . did he? For weeks and months, hadn't she waited, achingly, for just this hour?

Oh! for the right rejoinder. Words to lead him on.

But fate willed it that at that crucial moment they should reach the subway, and the taxi drew up with a violent skid and jerked them back to reality.

Soon they were at the hall

TRAINS KILL 5 AUTOISTS AT CROSSINGS

Hit-and-Run Driver's Girl Victim May Die; the Snow Makes Roads Perilous

Eleven persons were killed and scores injured, one probably fatally, in automobile accidents due to the snowfall and ice-sheeted roads yesterday and last night.

The only hit-and-run victim reported was Miss Erna Bottelson of Eutaw st., East Boston, struck down in Brooks st., East Boston when a car skidded, pinning her against a tree.

The operator extinguished his lights and hurried on, while the girl was taken to Strong hospital with internal injuries and fractures of the right leg, jaw and ribs. Her name is on the danger list.

KILLED IN TAUNTON.

Lieut. John C. Wing of the New Bedford fire department was killed together with William P. Taylor and George Murray when their machine crashed into a moving freight train at Taunton.

Warren Duggan and Roland S. John, both of Agawam, met death when their light car struck an express train in West Springfield.

Miss Mildred P. Wanders, 24, died at Dedham Emergency Hospital, after a collision between an automobile and a taxicab. Miss Mae Mulvey, 20, with her in the auto was treated for multiple injuries.

In a head-on crash near Worcester Johann Carlson, 27, of Rutland, Vt., was killed. Miss Ingrid Schelberg, 21, and Einar Larsen, 31, in the car with Carlson were badly injured, as were Alexander Stablin, his wife and daughter, Mary, in the other machine.

HIT BY FALLING POLE

Anna Margaret Armstrong, 7, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Armstrong, Jr., of Lee, died of a fractured skull, suffered when her father's car skidded and struck a tree between Lee and Lenox. Her grandfather, Charles Armstrong, Sr., was also injured.

In Winchester Alva Burke, 44, of Malden, was crushed against his parked car when a machine operated by Wayne Thompson of Winchester skidded.

William Vadeboncoeur, 21, of Keene, N. H., was killed in Peterboro, N. H., when a falling pole struck by a car operated by Peter Bergeron, of Keene, fell and crushed his skull.

Crossing the street in front of his home, Newell L. Cutler, 79, of Newton, was struck by a car and died within a few minutes. The auto, driven by David MacLeod of Newton Center, then skidded and overturned.

DYING IN MEDFORD HOSPITAL

Albert Kwist of Medford suffered a fractured skull when his auto crashed headon into an Elevated car on the Fellsway. He is dying at Lawrence Memorial Hospital.

Mrs. Louise Hart and her son, Charles, of 84 Beacon st., are in Malden Hospital with injuries received in a collision with an auto operated by Leonard Olsen of Medford in that city.

Olsen's car skidded into the machine in which the Harts were riding with Charles Frazier of Hemenway st., Boston.

Making the Most of Today's Dollar

This Period Is An Unusual One for Values Offered

(The seventh of a series of interviews with Massachusetts women leaders, giving their suggestions to those who buy goods and to those who sell them, concerning their mutual and vital problem of receiving and giving full value in every particular for every dollar spent. The eighth interview will appear in tomorrow's issue of the Evening American.)

By MISS FRANCES G. CURTIS

President Women's City Club

BOSTON MERCHANTS are to be congratulated on the constructive attitude they are taking toward holiday business. This is as it should be.

One of the encouraging bits of news we have heard lately is the announcement that the retail stores are taking on 5000 extra salespeople for the holiday season this year, as usual.

MISS FRANCES G. CURTIS

This is a good sign of returning prosperity, and the best remedy for the pessimism that is so contagious.

If we note the gate receipts for football games all over the country and the crowds attending amusements of all kinds, and the automobiles running daily we feel sure that millions are not suffering from lack of normal income, and these people can help the whole situation.

Those who employ labor should keep the essential industries going as near normal as possible. We are too easily frightened, not pausing to contemplate the money being circulated every day.

We find the stores willing to take smaller profits. But how long can they stand this unless the turnover of merchandise is regular? That is a point for consumers to remember and to profit by while they may.

During this period of forced turnover by means of sales and bargain activities, the consumer has opportunities to get good values not often available if she recognizes value and the reason for certain markdowns. A slight style change means a heavy markdown in price, yet the quality of the article is not affected.

The other day I bought a make of fine shoes regularly sold at $13.50 for only $4.20 in a bargain basement—an amazing value in a recognized high quality product. These were not out of style, and were in no way inferior goods, yet the fact that they were offered at this low price indicates how normal turnover is being forced, even at great sacrifice. This, of course, cannot go on for any great length of time.

The same condition prevails in foodstuffs. One firm, in its advertising, shows how today's dollar buys just about twice what it did last year. They sell two cans of peaches, for example, for the price of one last year.

Today's dollar can be made to go just as far, if not farther as it has always gone under ordinary favorable conditions. This period is unusual for the values offered.

(44 cash prizes, aggregating $550, are offered to college attendants, members of the Women's Trade Union League, retail store employes and office workers, for the best, brief letters commenting on any ten articles in this series. For further information write the Shopping Economics Editor, care of the Evening American, 3 Winthrop Sq.)

Three families, including a number of children, fled to the street today when fire, believed to have been caused by a child playing with matches, broke out on the first floor of the three story dwelling, 6-8 Century st., Somerville.

The fire started in the kitchen of the apartment of Mr. William Fox, whose five-year-old son had gotten hold of a box of matches.

And what is a news tip? It's the information that something of interest to Greater Bostonians has taken place or will take place. If you have a camera, take a picture of some news event, while it is happening. Pictures of unusual animal poses are wanted, too. Bring your action pictures to the American quick. Delay often spoils them for use in the American.

There will be $15 given weekly for the best or an unusual event news tip received; $10 for the next best; $5 for the next best, and $2 prizes for each of the 10 next most valuable tips. Of course, the first one who turns in the tip in an interesting event receives the award on that particular item. Anyone who is alive and alert can win.

Judge Says Either Dog or His Bark Must Embark

Not every dog may have his day in court, as did the animal belonging to John S. Pickett, 44, of 14 Mason rd., Newton Center.

Pickett, treasurer of a Boston trust company, was charged with keeping a barking dog by Mr. and Mrs. Davis S. Beyer, neighbors.

"That police dog has a harsh and hysterical bark," said Beyer.

JOBS SOUGHT FOR WOMEN AND GIRLS

Municipal Bureau Acts to Find Places for Many in Stores, Offices

(If you have an odd job to be done, or work for one or more men or women in your office, store, factory or other business enterprise, call the Municipal Employment Bureau, Liberty 8607, or mail the coupon to 25 Church st., Boston.)

Besides the hundreds of jobs wanted for unemployed men, factory, store and office jobs for experienced women and girl workers are also urgently wanted at the Municipal Employment Bureau.

The supply of jobs today was small and several hundred men and women applicants went home discouraged from the employment office.

Only speedy response by the people of Greater Boston to appeals for help for these unemployed can do any good now, before winter arrives in earnest.

Distress faces thousands unless work is provided, and every job supplied does its bit toward relieving the misery which grows worse day by day.

A little thought to the burden that the needy are shouldering will induce most people to help, and the Municipal Bureau provides a way in which practical help can be given.

College Heads Praise "Today's Dollar" Articles

Shopping Economics Recommended to Students as Timely Topic

College presidents and deans today voiced enthusiastic approval of the series of interviews, "Making the Most of Today's Dollar," now appearing daily in the Boston Evening American.

"These interviews are most timely," President Henry Lefavour of Simmons College declared. "They deal with a subject of vital interest to everyone at this time.

"The problem of distribution, which includes intelligent buying on the part of every consumer, is one of the most pressing economic problems of the day.

"We hope that all Simmons College students will study these articles and send you their comments."

PUBLIC SERVICE

Outstanding women leaders of the community, who contribute these articles, are performing a public service which should be encouraged, in the opinion of Dean Edith L. Bush, of Jackson College.

"When any newspaper undertakes to raise standards of thought in a community it should be encouraged," Dean Bush said. "I hope many valuable suggestions will be sent in by our students. There are many in the college who have the ability to review these articles for the essential worth of the ideas expressed in them."

TIMELY TOPIC

These interviews will be particularly helpful to young women who form such a large part of the buying public, Dean Bernice V. Brown, of Radcliffe College, believes.

"The articles on 'Making the Most of Today's Dollar' seem to me timely in the midst of Christmas shopping," Dean Brown said. "I believe they will be particularly helpful to young women, who form such a large part of the buying public."

Radcliffe College students, and those of Wellesley, Simmons, Jackson, Emmanuel and of Boston University College of Business Administration will compete for cash prizes, offered by the Boston Evening American, for the best brief comments on any 10 of the interviews on "Making the Most of Today's Dollar."

APPEAL TO WOMEN

Thoughtful girls will find these interviews valuable, in the opinion of Dean Alice A. Waite of Wellesley College. She added:

"Shopping economics are fascinating to most women, and this series appears to express the ideas of large groups of thinking women. We hope Wellesley College will be well represented in the contest."

The practical value of the series also was pointed out by the dean of Emmanuel College.

Today's article on "Making the Most of Today's Dollar" appears on the first page of the second section.

Castoria
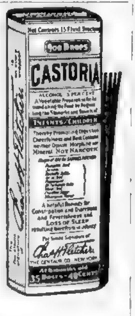
CHILDREN



CHILDREN usually hate to take medicine but every child loves the taste of Castoria. And mothers like its action—so gentle, yet so prompt and effective.

Castoria is a never-failing comfort to children and mothers alike because it was formulated expressly for children—to correct their little ills and upsets.

The beauty of it is you can give Castoria to children of all ages with equally sure results. When baby's cry warns of colic, a few drops of Castoria has him soothed; and free from pain, he is asleep again in a jiffy.

In an older child when coated tongue or bad breath tell of constipation, a more liberal dose is usually all that is needed to cleanse and regulate the bowels.

Your doctor will tell you Castoria deserves a place in the family medicine cabinet until your children are grown. He knows it is safe for the tiniest baby; effective for a child in his teens.

$1000 IN ILLEGAL VETERANS DOLE RETURNED TO CITY TREASURY

$10,000 MORE PROMISED BY OFFENDERS

Francis Peabody, Noted Lawyer, Commends City Officials for Starting Drive

More than $1000 in cash refunds and $10,000 in promised refunds have been made to date by veterans who received aid from the soldiers' relief department on the basis of false claims, Commr. John J. Lydon announced today.

Of the cash refund $131 was received today before Asst. Corp. Counsel Hale Power mailed new demands to some 1500 veterans alleged to have defrauded the department. The department seeks $65,000 in addition to that already collected or pledged in weekly instalments.

CHECK CITY WORKERS

It will be another week, according to Commr. Lydon, before it is determined whether any police or firemen are among the 100 city employes suspected to have defrauded the relief bureau.

William J. Bartholomew, the veteran arrested on a larceny charge at the start of the drive Monday, today asked a bill of specifications through his attorney, Francis J. Ford.

Among the letters of commendation received by Commr. Lydon today was one from Francis Peabody, Boston lawyer.

DRAIN NEAR END

Considerable of the lawful drain on the finances of the relief department should cease after Jan. 5, when the civil service commissioners start giving preference to veterans with dependents. The commission [illegible] and Counsel Power discussed this phase of the situation with the civil service group at the State House today.

William C. Adams, director of fisheries and game in the state department of conservation, today advised all sportsmen who wish to enter the woods on and after New Year's Day, the 1931 sporting and trapping licenses now can be obtained from city and town clerks and at the State House.

"There are no days of grace in regard to these licenses and each person hunting, trapping or fishing on January 1 must possess the proper license," he warned.

The increase in fees authorized by the Legislature become effective Jan. 1, he also pointed out. There will be a charge of $2.75 for a resident sporting license, $5.25 for a resident trapping license, $10.25 for a non-resident sporting or trapping license, $5.25 for a special non-resident sporting license, $5.25 for a special non-resident trapping license, $15.25 for an alien sporting or trapping license, $1.25 for a minor trapping license and 50 cents for a duplicate license. There will also be a special non-resident fishing license at a cost of $3.25.

SUBSTITUTE IN DEAD SAILOR'S JOB KILLED

Boom Crashes on Schooner Rainbow, Injuring Two Men, One Fatally

Replacing a member of her crew who died at sea on the last voyage, James Daley of East Boston was killed aboard the schooner Rainbow at Fish Pier today when a boom fell while a cargo of fish was being unloaded.

James Burbine of Congress st., East Boston, suffered a broken arm in the accident.

Daley had been hired for the unloading work to fill the place made vacant by the death on Wednesday night of Richard Morris, 35, of Saratoga st., East Boston.

The work of unloading had been under way but a short time when the boom fell on Daley and Burbine. They were rushed in a motorboat to Atlantic ave., where they were transferred to an ambulance which took them to Haymarket relief station. Daley died of a fractured skull and internal injuries.

The second tragedy cast a pall of sorrow over the Rainbow. Norris had died at sea of internal hemorrhages when the schooner was 200 miles from Boston and while his wife and four children were awaiting his return for Thanksgiving.

FIGHT FOR PORT OPENS MONDAY

More than a score of expert witnesses and officials will be ready to testify next Monday at the opening of the case of the city of Boston against New York railroads before the Interstate Commerce Commission charging discrimination against Boston.

The hearings, which will last a week or 10 days, will open at 10 o'clock in the Chamber of Commerce library.

Mayor Curley is expected to be the first witness if he returns in time from the West Indies.

This case is brought by the city through its corporation counsel, Samuel Silverman, and the Port Authority Board. Fully two years is expected to elapse before a decision is given by the commission as New York will file its defense early next year, to be followed by months of examination, rebuttal, argument, etc.

Among those who will testify next week are railroad experts, port engineers, industrial leaders and others to show Boston's port is losing millions of possible revenue through alleged unfair practices of New York railroads.

AUTO ARRESTS DROP 488

State police today reported to the governor's committee on street and highway safety that during the first three-quarters of the year, the worst automobile offenders were those failing to keep to the right when their view of the road ahead was obstructed, speeders and drunken drivers.

The total number of arrests for all automobile violations for the first nine months was 4219, a decrease of 488 compared with a similar period last year.

Of the 1002 arrested for failing to keep to the right the report showed, 969, or 96 per cent, were convicted. There were 825 speeders arrested with the same percentage of convictions, while of 453 drivers taken into custody for operating while under the influence of liquor 339, or 74 per cent, were convicted.

DRIVERS URGED TO TAKE TIME

More than anything else on [illegible]

The frightful record of ten persons killed over the Thanksgiving holiday should make every motorist in the state stop and think and drive with the utmost caution. GEORGE ARLISS TO BE DIRECTED IN 'THE RULING PASSION' BY AL GREEN

"THE DEVIL" ON STAR'S PROGRAM

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service

(Copyright, [illegible] Service)

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 28.—The youngsters better have an eye to their laurels. This is the year for the older generation to snatch honors. George Arliss and Marie Dressler are making history. Isn't it nice, too, that people who have worked as hard as these two should have such splendid recognition. George Arliss landed in New York a few days ago and is headed straight for Hollywood.

As soon as he gets here he will make "The Ruling Passion" by Booth Tarkington. Al Green, who did such a notable job in Disraeli, will direct Arliss in "The Ruling Passion." As soon as this is finished Mr. Arliss will make ready to do "The Devil" by Ferenc Molnar. [illegible] his stage play. I wonder why he doesn't make "Paganini," a stage play I saw him in many years ago and in which he was most interesting.

The opening movement of the first piece [illegible] by long odds the finest playing of the evening. Phrases were attacked with rare incisiveness, the tone was brilliant and full, the balance of the parts was excellent. 'TOM SAWYER' TOPS STRONG MET BILL

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

THANKS BE GIVEN to the Metropolitan for a first-class show for this new picture week started by the holiday. With "Tom Sawyer" excellently done on screen, and with a superb stage program, the theater pleased its audiences, a fact to be deduced from the frequent laughter and often recurring applause. Mark Twain's story furnishes the opportunity for youth to have its fling; youth is the keynote of the movie, and right well do the juveniles carry on, aided by certain clever adults like Tully Marshall and Clara Blandick.

Children will like this film, and adults will love it. In many ways it is what the box office calls a natural through its teeming humor and its fidelity to a painted masterpiece. "Tom Sawyer" develops an appeal to folk of all ages and so its record at the box office should be satisfying to exhibitors. It fairly bubbles with the spirit of boyhood. It has "atmosphere," due to sterling direction. Further tribute to the director is the picture's use of the cameras to tell much of the tale; dialogue is minimized, something to be grateful for in these days when the talkies seem about to be "talked to death."

JUNIOR DURKIN, remembered for his work with Janet Beecher in "Courage," on stage last season, has the role of "Huck" Finn, and he turns in a notably fine job. No less a talented lass than Mitzi Green does "Becky," very pleasingly too; and Jackie Searl is one of the best of all these children as "Sid." Mr. Marshall is "Muff," Lucien Littlefield is the teacher, and Miss Blandick is almost a perfect "Aunt Polly." The one disappointment is Jackie Coogan, making his talking picture bow. He is never the Tom we have in our mind's eye. But even his failing cannot [illegible] of [illegible] which fairly [illegible] from the [illegible] sheet. Its amount has done splendidly in picturing [illegible] Sawyer.

ON STAGE the Metropolitan has a presentation which has snap, comedy and color. Outstanding are Les Ghizzis, amazingly agile and strong. They stop the show cold. Their topsy-turvy "dancing" gets the laughs. Other featured performers in the show are Hurst and Vogt, the Four Rhythm Girls, and May Joyce.

Various Saint-Saens pieces are exquisitely rendered by Mr. Geissler's orchestra.

MARIONETTES AT TEMPLE

Strangely enough, the inventive hand of Maj. Herbert M. Dawley, whose marionettes are at Tremont Temple today and tomorrow, first turned to purely technical creative work. It has only been for the past 12 years that Maj. Dawley has devoted himself to the puppet stage. He has many patented devices to his credit, besides, one of the most important and best known being fender headlamps on motor cars.

His interest in marionettes dates from his first association with Tony Sarg in the production of [illegible] known as Tony Sarg's Almanac. "Captain Kidd and His Jolly Pirates," which Maj. Dawley presents this season, is a tale of the old buccaneers who sacked the Spanish main and [illegible] both [illegible]

'SIN TAKES A HOLIDAY' IS HELD OVER

The wide sweep of the action in "Sin Takes a Holiday," held over at RKO Keith's for another week, called for 32 settings in widely varying locales on both sides of the Atlantic, and Pathe took full advantage of the opportunities afforded to make this Constance Bennett vehicle the last word in modern motion picture production.

The settings for this story written by Robert Milton and Dorothy Cairns are representative of widely varied walks of life of two continents. In the early sequences, Miss Bennett is seen as a secretary who lives in drab surroundings. Then she finds herself possessed of money, leisure and a ticket to Paris and a lot of marital problems.

TWENTY-FIVE THOUSAND yards of specially prepared sound absorbing fabric, one of the largest shipments of this type to reach a motion picture plant, were used in the construction of the settings. With this new type of material employed throughout, there was not a harsh reverberation or echo in any of the 32 settings. All hard walls and surfaces were eliminated or so protected that they absorbed, rather than reflected, sound.

The fabric material all was dyed in color combinations chosen to bring out the best photographic values and provide harmonizing backgrounds for the action played in the various settings.

THREE DISTINCT phases of architectural designs and interior decorating—modern, period and character—are represented in the settings. New York is the locale of the opening scenes. The action then shifts to Paris and other fashion centers of Europe, with the closing scenes laid in New York.

Among the modernistic settings are the bachelor apartment of a wealthy New Yorker, the grand salon and first class stateroom of a new transatlantic liner, New York and Paris night clubs and even Parisian shops.

GRACE MOORE FILM COMING TO ORPHEUM

Sophistication in screen drama isn't what people think it is at all. In fact, it's just the opposite, according to Sidney Franklin, who directed Grace Moore in "A Lady's Morals," her first Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer talking picture, based on the life of Jenny Lind and on screen at Loew's Orpheum next week.

"All I have ever done," says the director, "has been to try to catch the spirit of the author and sincerely transfer it to the screen. That I happened to have 'Quality Street,' by Barrie, 'The Last of Mrs. Cheyney,' by Lonsdale, and others of that type of play to direct has resulted in my being called a directorial sophisticate. But I'm not the sophisticate at all. Barrie and Lonsdale are the fellows."

Franklin's idea of directing is, in a nutshell, sincerity and attention to detail. He loves to go into little details that echo the spirit of the play, and because of his skill in finding these details he has become famous as a deft delineator of humanity.

In the present picture he directed Miss Moore as a reincarnated Jenny Lind, in a vivid play dealing with the singer's rise to fame and her love for the blind composer that almost wrecked her life and her career. Gorgeous musical numbers in operatic scenes and otherwise in the drama abound, but the music is a definite part of the drama, and the story is one of gripping heart interest.

Crusaders and B. C. Will Lower Local Football Curtain ↕ Dartmouth Plays Stanford Eleven Cross Continent

Other Important Games on Tap Tomorrow

King Football's reign is drawing to a close. Harvard and Yale holed up with the early b'ars last Saturday. Unless Harvard has a rush of Charity to the face and develops enough feeling of kindness in a cold, cold, heart to play a post season game for the unemployed, the football curtain here in Boston will drop with the annual Boston College vs. Holy Cross shindy, tomorrow. The duel between the Eagles and the Crusaders will furnish a fitting finale to the local football season. The battle between the strong B. C. eleven and the boys from Worcester, who buried Harvard in the debris of a 27 to 0 defeat, should furnish one of the fastest, fiercest, most hectic gridiron combats of the season. For days you have been reading about it on these sports pages and Bill Grimes has another corking H. C. vs. B. C. story for you in other columns, today.

George Underwood

It seems too bad that our college elevens, particularly Harvard with its more than $109,000,000 investments and its giant football surplus, cannot do their bit for the unemployed. Army, Navy, Colgate, N. Y. U., Detroit, Marquette and other institutions, who arranged special charity games blazed a trail which Harvard, Yale, Princeton and other big universities should follow. Wealthy John Harvard in particular, isn't doing right by O'Neil.

Our good Mayor James Michael Curley made a her clean effort to arrange a post season game between Boston College and Harvard for the unemployed. Unless we are [illegible] Boston [illegible] Harvard [illegible]

[illegible]

Bedad, may the divil wear holes in the shoes of any mother's son of ye that isn't in the Garden when the gong sends Shamus and Johnny over the top! The air will be fuller of man-sized polthogues than at an old fashioned Pathron Day in County Wicklow. May the box office be just as full of Christmas baskets. Get your tickets early. Get them now!

THE HOME STRETCH

With their annual Thanksgiving Day battles, yesterday Penn, Cornell, Columbia, Syracuse, Colgate, Brown, Pitt, Penn State, Alabama, Georgia and other colleges followed Harvard and Yale into retirement.

Dartmouth winds up a successful season far afield, tomorrow throwing out its battle front against Leland Stanford in far off California. It devolves upon the Big Green team from the blue hills of New Hampshire to uphold the football honor of the East, which has been kicked around something scandalously by the West so far this season. Even the defeat of Fordham by St. Mary's, which California critics say is 10 touchdowns weaker than Washington State would be forgotten if Dartmouth should chastise Stanford.

The long train trip, the change from the cold, clear, invigorating air of the White Mountains, to the balmy, enervating California climate, is against Dartmouth. But Jack Cannell's Wah-Whoo-Wah boys, undefeated this season and held to a tie only by the team that is their ancient jinx, Yale, may come through with a victory that will make the ma[illegible] brothers sisters aunts uncles, cousins and sweeties of the many Boston and Bay State boys on the Dartmouth team give a good imitation of a wild night in the psychopath ward.

In Soldiers Field, Chicago, that great stadium on the Boule Mich where Dempsey dropped Tunney for the delayed count Notre Dame and the Army meet tomorrow in the seventeenth game of their series. Since the two elevens first opposed each other at West Point back in 1913 Rockne's men have won 11 victories to the Cadet's four. One game was a tie. All of 'em were cockle of the heart warming struggles.

After the game in Chicago tomorrow the Army heads back to West Point to put on the finishing touches for the big charity game with the Navy in New York on December 13 and Notre Dame returns to South Bend to get a few days' rest before hitting the trail West for California, where it tackles the powerful Southern California eleven.

The only stronger Pacific Coast team than Southern California is the great Washington State outfit which won the Coast Conference title. The Washington State eleven is here in the East now and will face Villanova at Philadelphia tomorrow. Boy, oh boy, there is [illegible] would like to be!

COAST GIANTS

Were from the Berkshires and [illegible] East but ever since [illegible] at Poughkeepsie [illegible] when we stood on the banks of the Hudson and saw a Washington crew come fighting down the stretch in the most gallant [illegible] stirring heart throbbing finish that ever was seen we've had a soft spot in our hearts for all the young stalwarts raised out there where tower the giant pines and redwoods and even the human race seems to take on added girth stature and ruggedness.

Half a mile from the finish line in the Poughkeepsie course stands the Poughkeepsie Bridge—the Bridge of Sighs, whose shadows have fallen on the hopes of many college crews. Hopelessly last as the lead crew's shell—if memory serves us right it was Cornell's—passed under the Bridge, Washington suddenly galvanized into action.

No form, no smoothness, the spurts of water showing how many "crabs" were being caught power, sheer man-power, drove that Washington shell up in jumps that fairly ate up the distance. Those sun browned Washington backs and long muscular arms flashed back and forth like pistons, not driving the long, slender, cedar craft through the water, but lifting it right out of it. Up, up, up, in fierce, savage lunges crashed that Washington shell from last into second place, barely failing to catch Cornell in the final desperate lurch for the line.

From past performances, this season, it looks very much as if the team of young giants who comprise the Washington State football eleven are of the same heroic mould as that Washington crew which rowed that race of races at Poughkeepsie. That is why we would like to be in the grandstand tomorrow watching Washington and Villanova.

Villanova has "some" team itself. The game will be a clash of giants.

On score comparisons Washington State which beat Southern California and California which beat St. Mary's, which in turn defeated Fordham, hailed as the strongest team in the

ALABAMA TO PLAY ON COAST

Tuscaloosa, Ala., Nov. 28 (AP)—President George H. Denny of the University of Alabama said today the Crimson Tide will accept the invitation to play Washington State at Pasadena, Calif., January 1.

Mr. Denny said Jeff Coleman, athletic business manager, had been notified by telephone from Pasadena that an invitation was being sent by telegraph.

The invitation was Alabama's third to the annual West [illegible] contests. [illegible] beaten Washington 20 to 19 in 1926 and tied Stanford 7 7 two years later.

40 Bouts Planned for St. Joe's Show

Bill Cuddy reports there will be at least 40 bouts at the St. Joe's amateur boxing tournament tomorrow night. In addition to matches in the eight heavy weight division there will be contests at 118, 126, 135, 147 and 160 pounds. The best of the simon pure battlers will compete and [illegible] contests are expected.

Last Minute Rally Gives Bruins 2-1 Win Over Ottawa

Football Can't Be Such a Hot Game, After All!

Waukegan, Wis., Nov. 28—Gloves were a part of the equipment of Marquette University's players who closed their football season undefeated in freezing weather by winning from Butler University 25 to 0.

Chicago, Nov. 28 (I.N.S.)—The Shriners sold 57,000 tickets for their Crippled Children's Hospital charity game at Soldier Field and 18,000 of them came out to see Oregon State defeat West Virginia 12 to 0.

Now the Shriners will have another game to build a hospital to take care of the 18,000 who suffered through the game with the Thanksgiving Day temperature just a few notches above zero.

The field was frozen as stiff as a hockey rink, which made it almost impossible for runners to hold their feet trying to pivot in a cut back run. Both teams wore mittens throughout the game and naturally that helped to bring about plenty of fumbles and muffed passes.

Henigan Finishes Fourth in Race

Berwick, Pa., Nov. 28—Richard Detwiler of Pennsylvania State College, won the 21st annual Marathon run over the Briarcreek Hill course. More than 40 runners took part.

Malden's 7 to 2 Win Over Medford Big School Upset

SOMERVILLE AND MELROSE WIN TITLES

By BILL CONNELL

The 7 to 2 upset of the strong Medford high eleven by a fighting Malden team was the highlight of the Thanksgiving Day grid games which closed the 1930 football campaign for the schoolboys.

The big majority of the favored elevens won as expected in their holiday frays. The victory of Malden, however, was one of the notable upsets of the season. The win by Malden over its ancient rival took all the sting out of a poor season for the Malden team's followers.

Bill Connell

The only other upset of the day was in the Rindge Tech-Somerville game where Somerville was a heavy favorite to grab the victory. Rindge played fine football to hold Somerville to a scoreless tie. The tie was enough to give Somerville one point and the Suburban League championship for the year.

English Wins Thriller From Latin, 14 to 13

In the Boston school games Leo Dacey's English high team fought through to a 14-13 victory over Boston Latin in one of the best games ever staged by the city teams. In the other half of this twin bill at Braves Field, Dorchester scored a 7 to 6 conquest of Boston Commerce.

Pete Shannon of Commerce, Jack Means of Dorchester, Dick Fieno of English and Tom Bilodeau of Latin were outstanding in the double bill.

Melrose high crashed to a 19 to 0 win over Arlington to keep its winning record perfect for the year and win the Mystic Valley League title. Canton, another eleven which won all its games of the season, defeated Stoughton.

Lynn English Ends With 47 to 0 Victory

Tony Geniawicz of Lynn English was the individual flash of the undefeated English team which crushed Lynn Classical, 47 to 0, a record winning score for the annual war between the two Lynn high schools.

That win ran English's total for the season to 301 points tallied in 11 games. Only one club was successful in scoring on English, Somerville high, which made a couple of touchdowns against Tom Whelan's championship eleven.

Salem high wound up its year with an easy 19 to 0 win over the heavy Beverly team. Phil Heffernan and Fred Axelrod were the stars of the Salem attack.

St. James Wins 26th Straight by Score of 99 to 0

St. James high of Haverhill won its 26th consecutive game by defeating Littleton, N. H., high by a 99 to 0 count, one of the biggest scores amassed by any team this year.

Brookline concluded a successful season during which it lost only one game, by walloping Newton high 37 to 7 as the new Dickinson Memorial Stadium at Newton was dedicated.

Everett ended a drab season by downing Cambridge Latin 7 to 0. St. Mary's of Brookline defeated St. Clement's of Somerville, 13 to 0, in the final game of the Catholic high school league schedule.

Title Chance for Salem Bout Winner

Hub boxing promoters will be at the ringside at the Salem A. A. next Monday night to watch the Jake Zeramby [illegible] bout which will feature the weekly show at the North Shore [illegible].

Eddie Mack of the Arena club has offered the winner of the bout a shot at Andy Callahan's New England lightweight title.

In the semi-final bout George [illegible] of Edgartown [illegible] Patsy Santo [illegible].

East, is 10 touchdowns stronger than Fordham.

Yet we wonder how many Washington State players will "make" the mythical "All-American" eleven.

Gosh, it's about time for that annual brain-storm, isn't it? Some of the greatest players of the game never have been mentioned for the All-American. Picking one is a fool's task. But if the public wants it—why give 'em to 'em!

Extra! Sharkey-Maloney Will Battle Tonight

By MR. BOSTON

Jack Sharkey and Jim Maloney clash tonight!

Matchmakers for every boxing club in the country will rub their eyes when they read this line.

They will probably conclude I have been punched out watching the "razzlers" and box fighters do their stuff.

I stand by my original statement. New England's leading heavyweights will swing into action at 7:15 p. m.

Instead of using boxing gloves as weapons they will be dolled up with flossy putters. The big fellows will collide in a game of golf at Honeyboy Finnegan's miniature golf course at Adams st. and Dorchester ave., Dorchester.

Honeyboy has brought about a meeting which no other promoter could arrange. You see Dick and Maloney are buddies while he also served in the navy with Sharkey. His friendship for both of these heavyweight stars enabled him to arrange tonight's feature.

So that the gallery may have a few laughs Dick has also paired Johnny Buckley and Dan Carroll. He has merely requested that they use their golf sticks only on the inoffensive ball and for them not to get into any arguments over the respective merits of their various boxers.

Maloney in Fine Shape for Risko

Maloney is already in fine condition for his 10-round bout with Johnny Risko of Cleveland which will be staged at the Boston Garden on December 5 for the Christmas Basket Fund of the Boston Evening American. Shamus has been belting around his sparring partners at a gym in Quincy.

Large Dan Carroll eased into a seat next to me in the press row at the Sonnenberg-Sherry bout.

"Maloney wants to knock Risko out," chirped Dan. "He is anxious to prove that Risko's two-round knockout at Cleveland was a fluke. In that bout Johnny clipped Jim with a left hook. As Maloney's head went back, it crashed against a ring post. It was the ring post and not Risko that knocked Maloney out."

Maloney will speed up in his training from now on and says he will be in as good condition for Risko as he was the night he scored his sensational victory over the gigantic Primo Carnera.

Risko Confident He Will Defeat Maloney

Risko has been training at a camp outside of Cleveland. He will come roaring into town early next week and will top off his training at one of the local gyms.

Johnny has always been a great short ender and says he will take Maloney over the jumps at the Garden show.

The Garden management and the Christmas Fund committee established a scale of prices of from 50 cents to $3 so that everybody would have an opportunity to witness the battle of punches.

Passing the Puck

George Mallinson and Bill Shaver were the officials of the Bruins-Senators game.

The former was not so good; the latter first-class. Penalties were few, the Bruins receiving only four and Ottawa six.

What is the difference between a goalie catching the puck with his hands or squeezing it between his legs? A face off in front of the net results if a net minder catches the disc and holds it, but Connell caught the puck between his legs and held it until the whistle was blown on no less than three occasions, and was never penalized.

Manager Art Ross doesn't like the idea of his defense men leaving their posts to carry the puck, but the Bruins' forwards were so successful in breaking through the Senators' packed defense, that the boss ordered Shore to rush continually. The scheme eventually worked, Eddie making possible the first goal at the start of the final period.

The Bruins' pilot also broke another of his pet rules in the game. Instead of substituting lines as has been his custom for a long time, he substituted individuals in the closing minutes of the fray and the fans saw such strange forward trios as Oliver, Weiland and Harris, Clapper, Chapman and Harris, Clapper, Chapman and Galbraith, and Barry, Chapman and Galbraith.

Wonder if Ross is beginning to worry about the showing of the team and planning on breaking up his present lines into three new combinations?

Harry Connors, former Bruin wing, played for the Senators for a few minutes in each period and received the well-known razz from the galleries. "Snowshoes," the cash customers have christened him.

Hec Kilrea is a great hockey player, but he wasn't so hot against the Bruins. Maybe there is something to those rumors that he is dissatisfied with his berth with the Senators.

The Bruins face two stiff engagements in the next five days. Tomorrow night they will take on Les Canadiens in Montreal and next Tuesday evening they will meet the colorful Toronto Leafs, featuring King Clancy.

The Chicago Blackhawks continue to run wild. They made the Rangers look like schoolboys over in Madison Square Garden last night. The Hawks are bound to get into the title playoffs if they can keep up the dizzy pace which they have been setting to date, but it is doubtful if they can continue it much longer.

Bay State Boys to Lead Rival Elevens

New York, Nov. 28—Ralph Hewitt, star quarterback from Lawrence, Mass., was elected captain of the Columbia football team after the Syracuse game. George Elert, end from Holyoke, Mass., was elected to the Syracuse captaincy.

Hewitt scored all of Columbia's points in the victory over Cornell here Nov. 1, but suffered an injured ankle in that game and broke a bone in his right hand in the Syracuse contest.

Bell of Cardinals Sent to Rochester

St. Louis, Nov. 28 (INS)—Herman Bell, right hand pitcher of the St. Louis Cardinals, today had been transferred to Rochester of the International League, according to an announcement of Clarence Lloyd, secretary of the Cardinals.

Andy High, star pinch hitter of the Cardinals, was released to Rochester earlier in the week.

3 HARVARD POLO TEAMS TO PLAY

The Boston Indoor Pony Polo League officials are making preparations for the greatest season in the history of the game in this section, the opening of which is carded for Dec. 16 at the Commonwealth Armory.

The Armory seating accommodation will be increased with new and better seats being installed and season tickets will be sold which will include the Harvard-Yale contest scheduled for March 14.

The schedule has not been announced yet but there are 10 teams entered and the league will be run off in two divisions, the winner of each to play a post season game for the championship.

In Class A, the five teams competing are the Westwood Polo Club, Harvard varsity, Battery A, 101st Field Artillery and the 110th Cavalry.

A comparison of the above teams would make the Battery A outfit with Clark, Walsh and Reed a slight favorite but Harvard and the veteran 101st trio of Furber, Needham and Pitman, will give them a hard battle throughout the schedule.

In Class B, the teams lined up are: Harvard seconds, Harvard Freshmen, Cavalry Cossacks, National Lancers, and 102d Field Artillery.

Both the Crimson jayvee's and the freshmen will be represented by strong combinations in this circuit.

PERES FACE SPEED KING IN MEEKER

Boston will see the "Albie Booth" of professional football on Sunday afternoon when the Pere Marquette and the Providence Steamrollers clash at Braves Field.

He is "Butch" Meeker, 146-pound quarterback for the Steamrollers, who sings the Alma Mater of Washington State University.

This mighty atom of the Rollers has been the sensation of the pro football league, being acclaimed in many spots as the greatest back in the moneyed ranks which have such members as Friedman, Cagle and Grange.

Meeker, according to Warren McGuirk, who plays tackle for the Providence pros, is one of the fastest backs that he has ever seen and one of the best all-round football players that he has faced. And Warren has seen and faced plenty of good backs in his four years at Boston College and two with the pros.

Other well known stars on the Steamrollers are Spellman of the Brown Iron Men, Jack Cronin of B. C., Kuckarski of Holy Cross, Bud Edwards of Brown, Joe Kozlowski of B. C., and Eshbach of Penn State.

The Peres, if they play as they did against the Fittons, will be crushed by this Providence invasion. But Tom Whelan, coach of the Caseys, has got his team primed to whip the Steamrollers. It is the only way for the Peres to regain their lost prestige suffered by their Fitton defeat.

Sonnenberg Retains Title in Thrilling Struggle

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN SPORTS

SHERRY PUTS UP GALLANT BATTLE

By JACK CONWAY

Gus Sonnenberg is today still world's heavyweight wrestling champion as a result of his clear cut victory over Jack Sherry before 9000 persons at the New Boston Arena at a show staged by Paul Bowser for the Christmas Fund of the Boston Evening American.

The fans paid $15,100 to see Sonnenberg and Sherry furnished one of the most sensational mat contests ever held in this city.

Jack Conway

Sonnenberg won the first fall in 31m 40s with a flying tackle. Sherry took the second fall in 21m. 30s An inside crotch hold, body lift, aeroplane whirl and body slam put the champion down

The deciding fall was gained by Sonnenberg in 9m. 31s A head scissors and wrist lock did the trick while Sherry was trying to score with an aeroplane whirl and body slam.

When Referee Sam Smith proclaimed Sonnenberg the winner, the title holder received an ovation from his admirers.

Sonnenberg's victory was a bitter blow to the followers of Sherry who felt confident he would conquer the champion.

Referee Leon Burbank who refereed the first Sonnenberg-Sherry bout occupied a ringside seat and considered Gus' victory complete vindication of his actions in the first bout between these men. He stated it was Sonnenberg's ability to take advantage of a situation rather than any interference on the part of the referee that had given Gus the win in the first bout.

Gus Out-Generaled Sherry in Crisis

In the Christmas Fund show, Sonnenberg also opened the door to opportunity. Sherry had lifted him high in the air and had started the first part of the aeroplane whirl when the champion clamped on a head scissors.

Gus then leaned over and fastened a wrist lock on Sherry. When the latter tipped Gus to the canvas he could not get away from the head scissors and wrist lock and was pinned for the deciding fall.

Burbank pointed out that it was similar quick thinking on Sonnenberg's part which caused him to send Sherry crashing to the canvas under him for the winning fall in their first meeting.

There now does not appear to be any doubt but than Sonnenberg is Sherry's master. The latter has given Gus the most severe opposition he has experienced as head of the heavyweight wrestling division but the champion stands up better in the tight spots than the challenger.

There wasn't a dull moment in the entire match. At times the rival grapplers disregarded the rules of the mat game and punched away at each other's chins. They furnished much more free socking than one gets at many a pro boxing show.

Sherry did his most effective work with his headlocks. He applied them with crushing effect. He also used the deadly rabbit punch which has been barred out of boxing, but which is permitted in wrestling

Sonnenberg was in bad shape several times from the effects of the rabbit punch and headlocks. He would crawl outside of the ropes to avoid punishment, but was always ordered back into action by Referee Sam Smith

Lee Wyckoff Wins Over Freddy Myers

Lee Wyckoff, former University of St. Louis star, won from Freddy Myers of Chicago in 29m. 2s with an inside crotch hold, aeroplane whirl and slam

Jack Ganson of California and Count Zarynoff battled 30 minutes to a draw [illegible] of West Point upset Frank Yusko of Arlington in 12m. with a body lift, aeroplane whirl and slam.

Stanley [illegible] of Cambridge conquered [illegible] of Canada in 14m. 9s. with an inside crotch and half nelson.

Al Baffett of Canada disposed of Roughouse Williams of Springfield in 15m. 56s.

The committee investigating boxing and wrestling in Massachusetts occupied ringside seats.

Walker and Christner Meet in Ring Tonight

Chicago, Nov. 28 (AP)—Mickey Walker, king of the world's middleweights, will make his second raid into the heavyweight division tonight, with tough Meyer "K. O." Christner of Akron, O., as his opponent in a 10-round bout at the Coliseum.

Christner, a good puncher, will outweigh the toy bulldog by at least 30 pounds and is regarded as a serious test.

EAGLES SET FOR CHANCE TO FLY AGAINST CRUSADERS

HENRY BUCKLEY, Boston College end, will charge in at the Holy Cross backs as shown in the above photo, tomorrow at Fenway Park. Buckley is a good end. Many H. C. plays are likely to end without gain when Buckley drives in.

PHIL O'CONNELL, Holy Cross quarterback, is one of the finest field generals in the East. He will try to make the going tough for B. C. tomorrow at Fenway Park.

DOWNES, PIVOT MAN in the B. C. line, is one of the men on whom Coach McKenney depends tomorrow when the Eagles face the Crusaders at Fenway Park. The game is one of the classics of each football season. Holy Cross is favored to win tomorrow. But the favorite in this game usually has an unpleasant time. So the Eagles hope to spill the dope and beat Holy Cross.

GREEN ELEVEN LOSES CLARK

Stanford, Cal., Nov. 28—Dartmouth and Stanford are all set for their intersectional football clash here tomorrow.

Light workouts will be in order today.

Lew Clark, star Dartmouth back, twisted a knee in a previous contest, and probably will be out of play tomorrow

Coach Cannell said Bill McCall would start at right half instead of Clark.

The Dartmouth team saw St. Mary's defeat Oregon in San Francisco.

Reds Release Three Players

Cincinnati Nov 28 (AP) Sidney Weil, president of the Cincinnati National Baseball team today said three players had been released outright to the Columbus American Association club.

They were Evar Swanson, one of the fastest defensive outfielders in the majors, and Kenneth Ash and Marvin Gudat, pitchers.

Record Crowd to Witness Irish-Army Wrangle

Chicago, Nov. 28 (INS) Once again comes the time when all roads will soon lead to the Roman pillars of Soldier Field Stadium. By 1:30 p. m. tomorrow another record-breaking crowd, close to 120,000 persons, will have assembled to witness the year's football classic between Notre Dame and the Army.

General Superintendent George T Donoghue of the South Park System reports the game as a sell-out. More than 110,000 seats have been sold and the balance of those in the stadium will be the thousands necessary for operating staff, ushers, vendors, police, employes, to say nothing of some 200 scribes from all parts of the country and radio announcers and their aids of nine stations which will broadcast the event.

The Chicago Evening American will furnish a complete broadcast of the contest between the two undefeated teams through station [illegible] which is owned and operated by the [illegible] & Mortgage Company and affiliated with this newspaper.

The game is attracting widespread attention, according to Mr Donoghue and President Edward J Kelly of the South Park Board and requests for tickets have come to the latter and the athletic au- [illegible] sections of the country

Two Suitors, But One Is Too 'Mushy'

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

BEATRICE FAIRFAX will gladly answer questions regarding heart and home problems. Address her in care of the Boston American. Write on one side of the paper only. If you wish a personal answer enclose self-addressed, stamped envelope. Otherwise, questions of interest will be answered through her daily columns.

Miss Fairfax broadcasts over Station WLEX every evening except Saturday and Sunday at 6.35 p. m.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Please try and advise me. Here is my problem. Two fellows say they love me. The first, who is 19, says he loves me next to his mother, but I really can't learn to love him as he is too "mushy." It seems to me all he thinks of is petting and kissing and I can never learn to love a fellow like that. The second is 17, same age as me, and I really love him, but doesn't show his love like the first one, although he says he loves me. What shall I do?

CURLEY

Beatrice Fairfax

Dear Curley—You are hard to please, aren't you? What annoys you in one fellow would please you in another, if you could get him to do it. Such is human nature. However, perhaps it isn't the petting you mind, but the fellow doing it. There is no pleasure in going with someone you don't like, so you'll just have to take the word of the one you do like and continue to go with him.

Advice To "Widow"

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

How can any woman love her children dearly when she stands idly by while an insane bully beats her two-year-old baby because she woke up in the dark crying? Unless I miss my guess she will wake up in the dark after many severe beatings and I am sure she deserves one darn good one to open her eyes before she ties herself up to that big bully. Oh, how I wish I could get my hands on him!

WIDOWED MOTHER

Above is a letter in answer to one who signed herself "Widow," saying that her prospective husband beat her little girl because she woke up in the dark and cried. Perhaps it will help "Widow" to make a decision.

She Can't Have Dates

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

My parents are terribly strict with me and won't let me have any dates, though I see girls younger than I am going out motoring with boys every night in the week. I am 15 but large for my age, and look a good deal older. My girl friends advise me to sneak out after Ma and Pa go to bed, which is about 8 o'clock. I don't like to do this, but I can't bear to see life passing me by and being left out of it.

MAUDIE B.

Dear Maudie—You'll have to be a good deal older, my dear, before you realize how young you really are. To my mind 16 is the earliest age at which a girl should have dates, and then only if she's levelheaded enough to take care of herself. Girls who begin to have dates too soon, do not, as a rule, prosper. They either marry when they should be in school, getting an education to equip them for life, and the next step is so often divorce because the modern boy is not stable enough to undertake the responsibilities of marriage. Or these girls just settle into date makers and nothing else—a girl who is at the beck and call of every boy of her acquaintance is not in demand for a real partnership. Don't think of sneaking. Talk to your mother and try to win her over to your going out with a group of young people, or having them come to your home.

It Offers Lonely Wives Diversion

By WINIFRED BLACK

THE LITTLE English woman didn't know a soul in town except her husband, and the rent collector, the postman and the man who came on Thursdays for garbage.

Winifred Black

Oh yes, and the man from the furniture house—he came about the installments.

Husband was in a law office, and he wasn't making an awful lot of money, so he turned his early education to advantage and went to teaching a class in the night school.

That left the little Englishwoman with three evenings a week on her hands. So one night after she had kissed husband good-bye and told him to hurry home, she tackled the dishes, polished the glasses and gave the little Irish teapot with the shamrocks on it an extra polish, and put the oatmeal in the steamer, all ready to set on the stove. Then she yawned and looked at the clock.

My word!—only seven o'clock!

And all the long evening to spend alone.

"Bz-z-z-z," said the bell.

"Who on earth," said the little Englishwoman, and when she went to the door, there stood her neighbor, across the hall.

"My telephone is out of order," said the neighbor, "would you mind very much if I used yours?"

And when the neighbor had used the telephone, she said, "no thank you," she couldn't sit down. It was her night for the gymnasium at the night school.

"I take Gym every Friday night," said the neighbor, "and French and typewriting Monday and Wednesday.

"My husband is on a morning newspaper, and he is away evenings, so I take up my time that way. I love it. I meet so many interesting people.

"The woman at the next desk to me, is 50 years old. Her husband is going to South America to start a business, and she says she doesn't intend to be a stranger there so she is studying Spanish.

"On the other side of me is a young fellow from Poland. He was a lawyer in his own country. I don't know what he does over here, but he's awfully smart, he always answers all the questions before anybody else gets a chance.

"Tonight we'll have a lot of girls from the country who are lonely in the big town, and middle-aged wives whose husbands are busy in the evening, and they come to 'one two three, stretch one, two, three, bend' for the sake of their figures. It is lots of fun."

The little Englishwoman's eyes were as big as teacups.

And when she found that these classes were just a part of the public school system and that you got lockers and shower baths and everything, even clean towels, and didn't have to pay a cent for them—she just put on her hat and her little English tweed jacket and went right down to night school with Neighbor.

That was six weeks ago and you ought to hear the little English woman talk.

"I don't have time to be lonely any more," she said—"oh once in a while when I get a whiff of violets from some florist's window I think of the street flower sellers in London, and sort of gasp a little, but my word, I'm learning something new every day, and I'd like to see you do that in dear old London.

"Husband stops by for me on his way home from his class, and we have a bit of toasted cheese, or something peckish, and talk over what's happened since we met. I'm 10 years younger, and a dozen times happier. I keep my little French book handy, and pick it up every time I get a chance.

"We're going to subscribe for a French newspaper now—I feel as if I had been deaf and dumb and partly blind all my life."

Rather an interesting thing to do, isn't it?

Good luck to you, Little Mrs. Kent and Surrey, and lots of it, may you have the figure of a sylph and the education of a lama of Tibet before you are through.

Lamps Make Fashionable Gifts

Directed by AMOS PARRISH

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—Christmas. It's on its way. This means presents—they have to be chosen. And the old cry of "What shall I give?" [illegible] for the last time.

Lamps [illegible] in words you can [illegible] question. Lamps are in fashion. And they're one of the most appreciated gifts, provided they're the right kind to fit into the atmosphere of the room.

Once it was candles and candelabra for a light. Then came oil. Now it's electricity. But many of the electric lamps most in fashion copy these oldtime candlesticks and oil lamps. Because these old lighting fixtures were graceful in shape. And because so many homes are furnished with things that are copied from the furniture of the periods when candles and oil lamps were used.

Candlestick lamp on tip-top table

Candlesticks and Candelabra

The candelabra and candlestick types of lamps are pretty safe types to choose for a gift. They look well in almost any room. In the earlier periods they were plain and heavy looking. And the modern reproductions that are plain and heavy look best in rooms of early English periods.

Later on they grew more elaborate. The sticks were fluted or beaded and the bases were carved. And modern candlestick and candelabra lamps of this later type go best in later period rooms. Yet either kind can be used in any kind of room. They have just one stand, even when the candlestick has more than one stick, and [illegible] of brass, pewter or silver. One is sketched above, on a tip-top table of Chippendale type.

Copies of old oil lamps are found in thousands of fashionable homes. They're of pewter or brass or painted metal—the same materials the old time lamp-makers used. And they're perfect in Early American or Provincial rooms.

If you happen to have a family heirloom in a Sandwich glass oil lamp [illegible] have it [illegible] for [illegible] Colonial [illegible] living room. If you have to ask somebody to [illegible] a modern reproduction [illegible]. There are good copies in [illegible] pressed or cut [illegible].

Opaque glass lamps with glass chimneys belong in Georgian type rooms. And they're used without shades just as the [illegible].

Twin Arm Lamps

A lamp of good simple lines and especially useful because it has two lights is the twin-arm lamp like the one sketched at the right. In metal, painted metal or wrought iron these are fine for [illegible] with an Early English, Early American or French Provincial room. And the lamp sketched is shown on an Early American table.

The single-arm lamp is another type that goes well in rooms of this character. It's a development from the student lamp that everybody knows was single [illegible].

Vase Lamps

Another sort of safe type of lamp to choose if you don't know what kind of room it's to go in is the vase lamp. It looks like some sort of flower vase or [illegible] and that's where it got its name. One of the simplest kinds is sketched below.

[illegible] there are more elaborate types. Chinese vases of china, porcelain, [illegible] or celadon that fit right in with Queen Anne furniture. Because in Queen Anne's day many of the furniture makers got their inspiration from China, which was just being opened up as a trading [illegible].

There's another kind of lamp that is sometimes hard to distinguish from the vase lamp. And that's the urn lamp. An urn, of course, is a kind of vase, but it wasn't intended to hold flowers and its neck was usually smaller and more often than not it stood on a kind of pedestal.

Other Lamps in Fashion

Many other kinds of lamps are in fashion and make fashionable gifts. There are column lamps that look like [illegible] columns and [illegible] Empire and Directoire [illegible]. And modern lamps of interesting shapes which strangely enough [illegible] with Directoire furniture as well as modern rooms.

Italian potteries that come in shapes too numerous to describe go in almost any kind of room except the formal period ones, particularly well in Provincial or modern rooms that are inspired by many periods.

And of course any of the lamps described can be [illegible] any room that is just a pleasant, comfortable home, not done with no particular period as its ancestor.

Monday: Amos Parrish shows how fashionable coats are warm without being bulky.

Should Use Maiden Name

By MRS. BEECKMAN.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. A friend of mine was [illegible] [illegible] on sending [illegible] cards for the gift [illegible] signed her name "Mary [illegible] Smith," using her family [illegible] name. Is this correct or should she have signed [illegible] "Mr. and Mrs. Smith" or "Mary and Leo"?

2. Is it proper for a single working woman in an office with several married men to send them greeting cards at Christmas and other holidays addressed to Mr. John Smith [illegible] should they be addressed to Mr. and Mrs. John Smith?

M. M.

1. If [illegible] I take it from your letter [illegible] letters of thanks [illegible] after her marriage, her signature to these letters was [illegible]. This is the correct form for the informal signature of a married woman: her first name, the last name of her maiden name and the last name of her married name. [illegible]

2. The greeting cards should be addressed to both wife and husband, even though she does not know the wife. It is extremely bad form to send cards to either a husband or a wife without including in the first case the wife and in the second the husband.

This important rule is also [illegible] we send formal invitations, announcements and all such letters.

Attire for Formal Festivities

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

At a high school banquet given for our football boys it was generally decided that the banquet was to be formal. Some of the girls wore hats and dinner frocks, others wore nothing on their heads. Later a discussion arose between A and B. A said that it was perfectly correct to wear a hat if one chose, [illegible] to a formal luncheon or formal dinner. B agreed with the first point but not the second. Please solve their problem and help them if you can, for they are depending on you.

G. C.

Since it was decided that the banquet was to be formal, the girls should have dressed formally, that is, they should have worn evening dresses and no hats. This is the attire that is appropriate to a formal dinner and, surely, a banquet is a formal dinner. And of course the boys also should have been dressed formally. At least the girls should have worn dinner dresses and without hats. For them to wear sports dresses [illegible] not careful of the compliment that they should pay to the formal affair.

No, it is not correct to wear hats to a formal dinner, never.

(Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on etiquette submitted by readers.)

Logan seemed spell bound by the explorer's talk.

But—what with the thrilling nearness of young Townsend and the still dizzifying news of the inheritance, Wilda found it hard to concentrate.

Came tales of strange undersea discoveries. Hazards run. Plumbings of uncharted ocean depths.

And through it all ran the recollection of the hard wisdom of her mother. With their altered circumstances Gracie had declared tonight that Logan Townsend wasn't good enough for her daughter.

But oh! if Logan spoke! If he should say the magic words she'd follow the dictates of her own heart, and let Gracie keep every penny of dad's money.

The lecture came to an end, amid applause. "Great fellow, that! Gosh! If I'd his opportunity," breathed Logan.

"You'd be off to the ends of the earth, leaving us all?"

He didn't answer Wilda. He walked mechanically beside her down to their train. Those brilliant blue eyes of his seemed to be seeing visions.

It was like that on the journey home. She was disappointed—chagrined.

Her mother opened the door to them and insisted that Logan should come in. Mrs. Gardner's mood had changed. She was affable now. When Wilda had run upstairs to take off her hat, she established the young man in a rocker.

Told the Tale

Of the $100,000

Then she blurted out the tale of their inheritance. A whole $100,000! She couldn't hide the glad news any longer!

"I'm going to see to it that Wilda meets the RIGHT kind of people now, and makes the RIGHT kind of social connections," she announced to him triumphantly. "And so—although she doesn't know it yet, and don't you breathe a word of it to her until I spring the news myself—today I paid the deposits on our first-class tickets for the next sailing of the 'Gigantic' to Europe . . . that's one of the biggest, most expensive liners . . . and Wilda'll have her opportunity at last for mixing with the top-notchers and making a REAL marriage!"

Wilda sat in her little cubby hole at Schentzel's, checking up accounts.

Five days had passed since she and Logan Townsend had attended the lecture at Town Hall, and from him in the interval there had come no word.

Coral Arrives

Cheerful Brunette

If the unexpected legacy were really going to form a barrier between them, what profit would there be in this money gain?

Gracie must have said something on their return that fateful evening that had definitely put the young man off her track.

If she could only know. Sort of calling him up and begging him to come and see her—and her pride revolted at such a step. Wilda would give a year of her life to think of something that would get him back.

The camp idea was all off. Gracie's determination to embark for Europe had written finis to Logan's scheme.

It was hard because of this "second blooming" of her mother's—to throw up the cherished plan, abandon the dream.

What had come over Gracie? She who had been in a backwater of life so long, had now let inhibitions go, and her one idea was to get out into the main stream.

Oh, it was exciting in a way, this dashing off to Europe. The other girls in Schentzel's thought her extraordinarily lucky—were envying her her trip abroad.

But what would foreign travel profit her, when she was leaving behind the man she cared about?

"Hello there, dreamer!" Suddenly she was aware that Coral Dennis, a girl-friend of hers, was standing quizzically before her.

Coral was twenty-four, a cheerful, humorous, plump brunette who had attracted [illegible] with Wilda. Coral, without any pretensions to good looks, was good-natured and popular. She contrived to enjoy herself [illegible] fun without going in for either vamping, petting or what the girls called "crushes." She was persona grata everywhere because of her fund of bubbling good spirits.

Coral liked men. She had a hail-fellow-well-met attitude toward them. At the same time she had not a great many illusions about them.

Not that Coral was cynical. Quite to the contrary.

But her head was screwed firmly on her square young shoulders.

In other words, there was no nonsense about her. This was a fact which young men trying to "get fresh" with her speedily discovered.

Coral at twenty-four had never been in love. But working in a milliner's from nine to six and spending the evenings thereafter with an assortment of her friends she managed to extract a good deal of level-headed pleasure from her life.

She considered herself extremely lucky in that she had never known the worries of a "grande passion."

While other girls were fretting about their beaux, Coral was ever always as fresh as a daisy.

"The old phiz stands me in good stead. I'm no Lorelei, luring men on to destruction. So I get P-E-A-C-E-!" She spelled each letter out in capitals. "My fatal beauty 'll never get me shot—and as I haven't got an honest-to-goodness beau, I can't go through the ignominy of being ditched either!"

Coral was a good friend. Straight as a die. Wilda was fond of her.

[illegible] lived with her parents in a big, old-fashioned house. The upper portions of this house had been rented out into apartments, but the ground floor and basement were retained by Coral's family.

Joyful Surprise

Off for Europe

There was also a pleasant old garden. When Coral "threw" parties in the warm weather the garden was quite a feature. Wilda had often enjoyed good times in the Dennis establishment.

"Hello, Coral," she said now, brightening at sight of her friend. "Come in and sit down." She swept some papers from a chair and closed the door of her tiny sanctum. "Where've you been all this while? Haven't seen you for ages—"

"Honey, I like your nerve. When you couldn't even give me a ring and spring your big news personally. No fair to little Coral, your lifelong friend, to leave her to read of it in the newspapers!"

"You mean about the money?" There was a strained note in Wilda's voice that did not fail to strike her hearer.

"A joyful surprise, I'd say! You could have knocked me over with a feather. And the latest report hath it that you're off to Europe.

Exercise Needed to Strengthen Heart

By R. S. COPELAND, M. D.

CIVILIZATION has brought with it many complications. Some of them seem almost impossible to bear. Living is made more and more difficult by the multiplicity of things that excite the heart. What can be done about it?

Dr. Copeland

Statistics show that heart disease is on the increase. It is now the chief cause of death.

There are many emergencies that make sudden demands on the heart. Great emotional strain has a distinct relationship to heart action. Without warning, a terrible strain is put upon the emotions and heart by news of sickness or death or disaster. Even everyday living has a good deal of strain associated with it.

Dr. William J. Mayo, that eminent physician known from one end of the country to the other, recently spoke to the members of the American Medical Association. In his address he said man has developed a brain at the expense of his body. [illegible] emotions. Dr. Mayo appears to think this has thrown a tremendous strain on the heart [illegible] it may account for deterioration of the heart in civilized times.

The heart is a mass of muscles. It must beat 70 times or so every minute. No matter how quiet you may be, the powerful heart muscles contract strongly every time there is a heartbeat. When you are hurried or excited these contractions are quite violent.

It is the height of folly for people to go through life too lazy or too negligent to get the amount of exercise needed daily for good health. Keep a reserve of strength not only of the heart muscles but of all the body muscles. This can be done by vigorous exercise and exercise that is regular, not spasmodic.

When a person has a weak heart that is a different matter. Such a person should be guided by the physician in all such matters as exercise and the general care of the health. But for most of us regular and moderate exercise, freedom from worry and emotional strain and right living in general keep us fit for daily [illegible].

Bank Merger Cures a Sore Spot; J. P. Morgan's Transformation

By B. C. FORBES

New York, Nov. [illegible] last is heading upward [illegible] that is what the stock market has been saying during the last two weeks.

B. C. Forbes

The market action lately has been more genuinely reassuring than at any earlier stage this year. One of its best features is its dullness. Another is its tendency to advance when left alone by powerful operators. For every three dollars brokers were borrowing a little over a year ago they are now only borrowing [illegible]. The fact is that this merger has cured a condition which has [illegible] created uneasiness in the highest and most conservative financial circles in America. "Is hand-to-mouth buying here to stay?" This question is often asked by many people. In fact, it is a nightmare to many manufacturers. Some would like to believe that the practice is only temporary while others long ago decided that hand-to-mouth buying is not only here to stay, but that only such business concerns as hasten to take advantage of it may continue to be successful.

G. H. Corliss

"To be successful in hand-to-mouth buying, speed is absolutely essential. Read what one manufacturer says in this connection:

"We do not consider the day done until every possible order received during the day has been shipped. One customer sells over $300,000 worth of our product at retail on a monthly inventory of less than $20,000, thereby making a turnover of better than 15 times. In reality, such merchants are operating on our capital, for our terms are 30 days, and with this turnover, the merchandise is sold long before it is paid for.

"When we want to emphasize a line of goods, or bring out a new style, or have news of great importance to pass on to our customers, we wire them at once. When French fashion authorities named a new color for Charlotte Corday last June, we received word by cable, immediately put this color in the line, wired all customers the news, and were ready to ship orders the next day. Such "scoops" put a line over, show the customer we are giving him the edge over customers of other manufacturers."

Steel Output Still Lower

A reduction of 3 per cent in steel ingot production in the past week did not disturb the stock market because it had been predicted freely that the trend of steel activities would not change until next year.

Beginning with the middle of January, some indication of increased activities would be normal. However, even the most optimistic trade interests do not anticipate anything spectacular. At best they look for a gradual uptrend which might carry until the end of the seasonal spring demand.

Continued demand for Baldwin is explained by the revival in locomotive buying, with several leading systems reported planning additional orders.

Diamond Match's Plan Is Favored

Interests holding large blocks of stock in Diamond Match Company, it was learned [illegible], are considering plans to persuade the management to declare operative the recapitalization and reincorporation plan. Ninety-one per cent of the stock had been deposited on Nov. 25 and sufficient additional stock is in prospect to bring the amount to 94 per cent but the management says the plan will be abandoned unless 97 per cent had been deposited by Dec. 1.

Calumet-Phelps Merger Discussed

Lake Superior investors in Calumet & Arizona would vote against a merger plan with Phelps Dodge if one were submitted to the shareholders, in the opinion of those who have sounded out sentiment in regard to the matter. The directors of Calumet & Arizona are in no way committed, it is stated. There is nothing to indicate that the reports of the engineers will be [illegible] and that a merger recommendation will result.

With exception of the new [illegible] Cananea, no deposit [illegible] has been found in the United States or Mexico in recent years to compare with the Campbell ore body of Calumet & Arizona.

Jersey Standard Helped by Extra

Humble Oil declared an extra of 50 cents in addition to the regular quarterly 50 cents. That is helpful to Standard Oil of New Jersey, which owns 63 per cent, perhaps more, of Humble's capitalization. Looking over Humble's record the past [illegible] one can conclude that 50 cents extra is not a strain on [illegible] resources. Last year Humble earned [illegible] to $11 a share and the 50 cents extra makes $2.50 for the year.

Locomotive Has Better Outlook

Not so long ago American Locomotive preferred and common were selling above $100. Now preferred is quoted around $82 and the common $32. This shrinkage, as every one knows, is due to the decline in demand for locomotives. But prospects now are a great deal brighter for Locomotive, as an aggressive program for diversification is well under way. It will require [illegible] for new construction.

Woolworth Trade Prospect Cheers

The bulls say recent activity of Woolworth has been due to the good showing so far this year and to prospects of a holiday trade that will eclipse all December records. It is attributed in part to reports that if results for 1930 look good to the directors, and prospects for 1931 are encouraging, a small stock dividend may be voted in 1931 in addition to the regular cash payment.

CURB MARKET OIL ISSUES ARE LOWER

New York, Nov. 28—Curb traders came back to a dull and drooping market today.

Petroleum issues, which lagged in the recent rally, dropped back to around their low levels of the year coincident with the announcement of gasoline price reductions by Standard of Ohio.

Humble broke more than 2 points to a new minimum and Gulf lost even more. Vacuum and Cities Service sagged, the latter losing nearly a point. Standard of Kentucky was firm.

Offerings of the utilities were light, but the pressure was enough to send Electric Bond & Share and American Gas & Electric down a couple of points. American Light & Traction and American & Foreign Power warrants lost one or more.

Diamond Match new rallied more than a point, on the news that important stockholding interests were endeavoring to persuade the management to declare the recapitalization plan effective, inasmuch as 91 per cent of the outstanding stock had already been deposited and enough more pledged to make 94 per cent.

California Packing Bonds Are Listed

California Packing 214,286 additional shares of common. Atchinson, Topeka & Santa Fe Railway, 179,190 additional shares of common and American Power & Light, 309,826 additional shares of common.

Soft Coal Output for Week Lowered

INSURANCE

Personal Holdup Policy Seen as Necessary
Low Rate on Blanket Policy Against Burglary
Van Used While Family Is at Summer Home
Employers' Liability Protects Domestic Help

By Frank F. Loomis

In these days of hold-ups and burglaries, there is hardly a daily newspaper in the country but what records one to a dozen crimes of this nature every day.

This is particularly true in the larger cities, where parties are followed home in their automobiles from the opera, theater, or other places of amusement and then when alighting from their car in front of their residence or garage, are held up and robbed, not only of what money they have in their possession, but of rings, watches, any valuable jewelry and fur coats.

Personal hold-up insurance can be carried to protect any financial loss as a result of these crimes and is very essential this winter with the unemployment situation throughout the country and crimes of this nature on the increase everywhere.

Such a policy may be secured to cover losses by hold-up, no matter when or how it may occur, and the cost is not high considering the risk involved. This insurance coverage is written by practically any and all of the large casualty companies.

For instance, a woman may insure her fur coat for a nominal sum of $2.00 a year for each $100 of value. This covers theft or loss of the coat in any manner, not only in case of a holdup, but if lost anywhere.

The coverage is world-wide, wherever the coat may be, including permanent residence, hotel, restaurant, theater, in storage, and in all perils of travel or transportation.

The same broad coverage policy may also be secured for theft or loss of jewelry at a little higher rate.

It is equally important to insure against burglary in the home. A blanket policy may be purchased covering everything, including household goods, rugs, pictures, sterling silver, clothing, jewelry, furs, and in fact everything in the house, but not exceeding fifty dollars in money.

This coverage can be secured at a very low rate, and also when the house is vacant, which is most important.

Numerous burglaries are committed in vacated homes. Of course, in most cases, when a home is to be left unoccupied for some time, valuable furs, jewelry and silverware are put in safety deposit vaults, but the furnishings of a home are of great value to the owner, and should be protected.

Only a short time ago, in a suburb near Chicago, while the family were away at their summer home, parties backed a van up to the house, and removed practically everything there was in it. The neighbors simply thought the family were moving.

It would be well to consult one of the large casualty companies or brokerage firms as to the various forms of policies, outlined above, to protect yourself against financial loss from both hold-ups and burglaries.

As a rule when a man has property and furniture covered by fire insurance, and his automobile insured, he thinks that is all that is necessary as far as his property is concerned, but as a matter of fact, the losses are far more greater from the hazards described than they are from fire.

Another form of casualty insurance which is largely overlooked is what is so-called Employers' Liability. Manufacturers and large industries have realized more or less the importance of carrying this line of insurance protection, but it is largely neglected in the home.

Only a short time ago, a hot water faucet became disconnected in a home and the maid was so badly scalded that amputation of a hand was necessary, with the result that a large suit for damages against her employer was brought.

There are many similar accidents happening every day to servants and the head of the family is taking great chances when he does not protect himself against such lawsuits.

Employers' Liability insurance covers all cases of this kind, where an employe is hurt while working for or on the premises of the employer.

The yearly cost is moderate and the rate is based on the servant's duties, whether inside or outside. A telephone call to any brokerage office or casualty company will secure this coverage for you.

SPECTATOR'S VIEWS GIVEN

Production of motor vehicles in the United States and Canada in October, according to the Department of Commerce, totaled 154,585 as against 224,834 in September, a decline of 31.4 per cent. This compares with 394,540 in October, 1929, a drop of 60 per cent. Output in the 10 months period ended October amounted to 3,215,032, as compared with 5,269,216 in the corresponding period of last year, a decline of 39 per cent. Automobile interests are of the opinion, however, that November output will exceed October by a substantial margin, and further improvement is anticipated for December.

Takes Bearish View

One stock exchange firm which is leaning toward a somewhat bearish view on the near term course of market prices points out that in the past, holiday interruptions have frequently marked turning points in the trend of stocks. This proved to be the case after Labor Day, 1929, Easter, 1930, and May 29 and July 5 of this year. This quarter is of the belief that should this downturn develop, support will probably be encountered just above the lows of November 10.

Sharon Steel Hoop President to Quit

Severn P. Ker, president for 20 years of Sharon Steel Hoop Co., expects shortly to resign to become chairman of the board. His successor as president has not yet been named.

STOCKS LOWER IN BOSTON DEALINGS

Prices were worked to lower levels in dull trading on the Boston Stock Exchange today. Changes ranged from fractions to 5 points or more. Boston & Albany and Utility Equities preferred were strong features, each gaining around a point.

Continental Securities slumped 5 points, Atchison dipped 4 and Edison Electric was 3 points lower.

Gillette moved in a narrow range. Stone & Webster dipped 2 points, New Haven lowered 1¼ and General Electric was down a like amount.

American Telephone and Penn R. R. dropped around a point. Anaconda and United Founders showed minor losses.

Excess reserve of members with Boston Federal Reserve Bank totaled $552,000, a decrease of $1,350,000; non-member excess reserve $3,251,000, a decrease of $85,000; total excess reserve $3,803,000, a decrease of $1,435,000.

Signs are accumulating that the oil industry, cognizant of requirements of the present economic situation, is meeting its problems in a more conscientious and determined manner.

Recently weekly oil statistics have given indications of a progressively corrective tendency, although it is appreciated that efforts must be continued throughout the winter if definite improvement is to be achieved.

The greater progress has been made in curtailing production of crude oil.

Canada Dry Ginger Ale is making a good showing as compared with the beverage industry generally. No business is being lost to competitors.

B. & M. Earnings Are at Best Marks of Current Year

October statement of Boston & Maine Railroad supports the prediction that the $4 common dividend will be covered amply in 1930. For the first time this year, net income surpassed the corresponding month of 1929. Net railway operating income of $1,345,077 compares with $1,203,841 for October, 1929. After allowing for proportionate dividends on all classes of preferred stock, October net income was the equivalent of about $1.07 a share on the 395,051 common shares. RAILS LOWER IN NEW YORK DEALINGS

New York, Nov. 28—Although the carrier shares found the greased on the down-grade in today's stock market, the remainder of the list resisted unsettlement and several extreme losses of 2 to 6 points were reduced by half in the late trading.

The market was in the main lethargic, as was expected in the day and a half period between a holiday and week-end. The day's transactions aggregated only 1,750,000 shares.

The week-end mercantile reviews said the cold wave had stimulated retail buying of heavy apparel, but in general reported little change in the prevailing quiet.

SOME FAIR RALLIES

Shares selling off 2 to 3 points then recovering about ½ included U. S. Steel, American Telephone, Consolidated Gas, Goodyear, Pennsylvania Railroad, New York Central, and New Haven. Missouri Pacific and Union Pacific sold down 5 and 4 points, the former to the lowest in six years, then recovered 2 and 2.

Atchison dropped 6, and recovered 2. Illinois Central sold off 4 to the lowest in about 30 years, then recovered a point. Republic Steel pfd lost 3¼. Otis Steel lost 2 points on omission of the dividend.

The re-convening of Congress on Monday threw a cold chill over the stock market, which is the usual procedure. Wall Street does not relish the prospect of congressional dabbling in either security or commodity markets, or the possibility of an attempt to amend the banking laws, as has been so often threatened.

Heavy selling of stocks in the last few weeks has come from sources that are afraid of congressional investigations.

The bulls were standing manfully behind their favorites in the steel, copper, oil and other groups, while the rails and utilities were under pressure.

NEWS MORE CHEERFUL

Business news appearing over the holiday seemed a shade more cheerful, but the market was evidently not impressed with it. Building contracts awarded during the third week of the month were substantially higher than during either of the first two weeks.

The recent decline in electric power consumption was checked, the volume for the week showing a gain of 1-5 of 1 per cent from the previous week.

October Railway operating income reports continued to show improvement over September, with an aggregate decline of less than 25 per cent from the like month a year ago, as compared to September's drop of about 30 per cent from that month in 1929.

New England Has Best Sales Gain

In a nation-wide sales contest conducted by The Sherwin-Williams Company, the world's largest paint and varnish manufacturers, the New England Sales District showed the greatest gain in sales over eleven other sales districts in the United States.

"Sales for the year showed a gain of 7.4 per cent over the same period last year. This increase reflects the sound business conditions of New England and puts the bad business bugaboo to route as far as the paint and varnish business is concerned," said J. R. Stout, district manager.

Aroostook Profits for 10 Months Up

Bangor & Aroostook Railroad reports for October surplus after charges of $237,120, comparing with surplus after charges of $281,938 in 1929.

Ten months' surplus after charges was $1,451,473 comparing with surplus after charges of $1,240,432 for the corresponding period last year.

Dividend Is Passed by Otis Steel Co.

Cleveland, Nov 28—Otis Steel Co. omitted the quarterly dividend of 62½ cents on the common, due at this time. Regular quarterly dividend of $1.75 was declared on the prior preferred.

BIG WELCOME GIVEN SANTA

With the applause and laughter of 75,000 children and parents ringing in their ears, Santa Claus and his children, Santason and Santason's sister, yesterday ended their journey from the far north in a colorful parade [illegible] the embankment [illegible] Marsh Company store.

The arrival of Santason and his sister almost ended [illegible] when the crankshaft of the huge amphibian plane in which they travel, broke. Excellent piloting by Stanley Boynton, of Lexington, brought the ship down safely on the water near Pier 50 East Boston. From there the northland visitors were rushed in a limousine to the embankment.

THOUSANDS ON HAND

Here they joined the glittering [illegible] of Fairyland favorites which awaited them. The procession wound its way to Jordan's store. There Santa and his children will receive youthful callers from now until Christmas.

The unique parade was an event that has long been looked forward to by great numbers of children, for it was designed to make them laugh as they have never laughed before.

Thousands gathered on the embankment to await the arrival of Santason and his little sister in an amphibian plane. As the crowd milled about looking at the strange balloon-like creatures, a giant fish, rabbit, man, dirigible and captive balloon—snowflakes commenced to fall, giving a real Northland touch to the picture.

GIFT OF DOLL

Santa Claus, in his red suit and white whiskers, [illegible] the float [illegible] Jordan Marsh Company officials anxiously awaiting the arrival of his son and daughter. The time for their appearance arrived and no sign of the missing youngsters. Finally, a big limousine dashed up and out of it jumped Santason and his sister.

Then it was learned that the crankshaft of the big amphibian had broken.

Santason's sister presented Martha Augusta Marchant, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis A. Marchant of 95 Clifford st., Melrose, with a [illegible]

The parade, which was in four divisions and about a mile in length, was marshaled by Capt. Burnelle G. Hawkins, store manager of Jordan's, mounted on a handsome horse. Capt. Hawkins had a mounted aide. There were mounted police, the House of Angel Guardian Band, colors and color guards, national and state, and a Santa Claus balloon.

To Open the Christmas Seals Campaign on a Large Radio Tyeup

The great annual campaign for the sale of Christmas seals for the benefit of the National Tuberculosis Association will be launched by Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York in an address to be broadcast this evening over the nation-wide hookup of NBC at 9 o'clock, coming through locally over WBZ-WBZA.

Gov. Roosevelt will review the work which has been made possible through the funds raised each year by the sale of seals. He will give an acount of the growth of the movement during the 25 years which have elapsed since it was inaugurated by Miss Emily P. Bissell in Wilmington, Del., and he will tell of the future needs of the association.

Gov. Roosevelt will speak from his vacation headquarters in Warm Springs, Ga. The regular Interwoven program, which is heard from 9 to 9.30 o'clock, will be interrupted to permit the governor to speak for eight minutes.

Radio Star

BERNICE CLAIRE, musical comedy and screen star, heard last night during A. S. Beck Brevities program over the Columbia system.

RADIO Personalities

Each CBS conductor to his own taste when batoning. [illegible] MARK WARNOW [illegible] NAT PRUSILOFF waves his violin. VINCENT BARLOW uses a wand so slender that the men in the rear can't see it. PAUL WHITEMAN employs a bludgeon three feet long; FREDDIE RICH wiggles his fingers; GUY LOMBARDO uses a hand carved, engraved stick; and BILLY ARTZT, JULIUS MATTFELD and CHANNON COLLINGE wave the conventional baton. . . And if we ever lead an orchestra we will swing a typewriter. . . GLADYS RICE, NBC soprano, will testify that the age of letter writing is not dead. Four years ago three elderly women requested Miss Rice to correspond with them, and the ensuing years have established a firm friendship. . . PETER DIXON, NBC actor, has a farm in L. I. on which every known variety of shrub has been planted.

Concerning Radio

By BILL WHIPPLE

Some very interesting data has come to hand which we believe is worthy of your attention, particularly should it appeal to young men in their late teens and early twenties who are casting about for a life's occupation, who are possessed of a restless nature which would unsuit them for the routine and confinement of a business pursuit.

According to Joseph E. Sheedy, operating head of the United States Lines, in a broadcast the other evening the American Merchant Marine is on the threshold of the greatest development in the history of our country.

Says Mr. Sheedy:

"Right now vessels reaching a total of 700,000 gross tons are being built or planned. Under such conditions, I would advise those of you so inclined to think seriously of following a career at sea. Those of you who love adventure, who want to see the world, who have a yearning for the great open spaces, whether they be land or water, will undoubtedly find a satisfactory career in following the sea. I can recommend it highly as a calling for the intelligent, sturdy and daring young men who possess qualities of leadership."

In another broadcast last Wednesday evening by an official of the United States Lines some interesting statistics were quoted which give an idea of the tremendous proportions of our shipping business, and which should show to a young man casting about for some interesting line of endeavor that the merchant marine is a mighty important factor in the nation's affairs.

This country, with its estimated wealth of $400,000,000,000, has a water-born commerce of $8,000,000,000, and a freight bill for carrying this commerce of $725,000,000 a year. Think that over, you young bucks who cry there are no opportunities for you to grasp.

The American shipping companies receive approximately $360,000,000 yearly through carrying passengers and freight, while $740,000,000 are paid to foreign flag shipping companies. Certainly, with such great sums of money associated with this industry, and it is an industry no young man need feel that he has gone into a small-town game or that the field is narrow.

Radio Equipped Passenger Trains

While we are in a statistical-giving frame of mind may we enumerate some more interesting data. We folks in the United States like to believe that we lead the world in everything, but the following facts would seem that our neighbor to the North, Canada, makes traveling much pleasanter for her citizens than do our railroads at home.

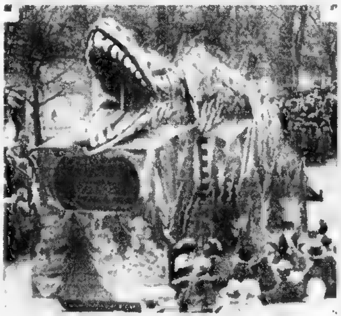
During the year 1929 Canadian National radio-equipped cars traveled approximately 8,000,000 miles in Canada and the United States providing approximately 310,000 passengers who took advantage of the service with 77,600 hours of entertainment. Out of a total of 111 cars that are now permanently wired for radio, 31 were placed on the road within the last three months.

What should receive the attention of every listener-in tonight at 7:55—it is only a five-minute broadcast — will be John B. Blandford, member of President Hoover's Emergency Committee on Employment, speaking on "Cities and the Unemployment Problem" over the Columbia System.

Tonight from 11:30 to 11:00 over WEEI the "RKO Theatre of the Air" are to introduce a new [illegible] in their program. The birthdays of prominent RKO Pictures, Universal, Columbia and Pathe will be announced to the radio audience a few days previous to the celebration of these events. The listeners-in will be advised to send a little note of congratulation to the star whose birthday is approaching, which will be acknowledged with a personal note and an autographed photograph.

Knute Rockne and the Notre Dame Glee Club, will be featured stars on the Armour hour broadcast tonight at 8:30 o'clock. Rockne is a national figure in the sports world and a most interesting speaker.

Santa Family Arrives



A GENUINE WELCOME to the Claus family, including Santa, his son and daughter, was given by Boston folk when all three appeared yesterday in the Jordan Marsh Company parade. The Santason party moved through streets crowded with parents and children. Here we show you the great dragon that thrilled the little ones and the bigger people, too. (Staff photo.)

CHASM SUICIDE IDENTIFIED

Worcester, Nov. 28—The victim of the shooting in Devil's Coffin, a cave in Purgatory Chasm at Sutton, was identified today as Simon Fuch, 43, of Northbridge, a few hours after he had been declared a suicide by the medical examiner.

Fuch, married and father of three children, left his home last Wednesday morning, but did not arrive at his place of employment in a Northbridge mill.

Members of the family who identified the body said they knew of no reason why he should take his life and did not know that he owned a revolver.

The body was found by the Rev. Charles B. Bodwell of Boston, secretary of the Watch and Ward Society, and his two sons, who were exploring the chasm.

Because there were two bullet wounds, one over the heart and the other in the temple, and because the body was wedged between two rocks so that only the head and shoulders were visible, it was at first believed to have been a murder. The revolver was found nearby.

BIG WELCOME GIVEN SANTA

With the applause and laughter of 75,000 children and parents ringing in their ears, Santa Claus and his children, Santason and Santason's sister, yesterday ended their journey from the far north in a colorful parade from the Charles river embankment to the Jordan Marsh Company store.

The arrival of Santason and his sister almost ended in disaster when the crankshaft of the huge amphibian plane, in which they travel, broke. Excellent piloting by Stanley Boynton, of Lexington, brought the ship down safely on the water near Pier 50, East Boston. From there the northland visitors were rushed in a limousine to the embankment.

THOUSANDS ON HAND

Here they joined the glittering and grotesque array of Toyland's favorites which awaited them. The procession wound its way to Jordan's store. There Santa and his children will receive youthful callers from now until Christmas.

The unique parade was an event that has long been looked forward to by great numbers of children, for it was designed to make them laugh as they have never laughed before.

Thousands gathered on the embankment to await the arrival of Santason and his little sister in an amphibian plane. As the crowd milled about looking at the strange balloon-like creatures—a giant fish, rabbit, man, dirigible and captive balloon—snowflakes commenced to fall, giving a real Northland touch to the picture.

GIFT OF DOLL

Santa Claus, in his red suit and white whiskers, was on the float with cameramen, reporters and Jordan Marsh Company officials anxiously awaiting the arrival of his son and daughter. The time for their appearance arrived and no sign of the missing youngsters. Finally, a big limousine dashed up and out of it jumped Santason and his sister.

Then it was learned that the crankshaft of the big amphibian had broken.

Santason's sister presented Martha Augusta Marchant, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis A. Marchant of 95 Clifford st., Melrose, with a beautiful French doll.

The parade, which was in four divisions and about a mile in length, was marshaled by Capt. Burnelle G. Hawkins, store manager of Jordan's, mounted on a handsome horse. Capt. Hawkins had a mounted aide. There were mounted police, the House of Angel Guardian Band, colors and color guards, national and state, and a Santa Claus balloon.

Each CBS conductor to his own taste when batoning his group. MARK WARNOW swings a yellow pencil; NAT BRUSILOFF waves his violin; VINCENT BARLOW uses a wand so slender that his men in the rear can't see it; PAUL WHITEMAN employs a bludgeon three feet long; FREDDIE RICH wiggles his fingers; GUY LOMBARDO uses a hand carved, engraved stick; and BILLY ARTZT, JULIUS MATTFELD and CHANNON COLLINGE wave the conventional baton. . . And if we ever lead an orchestra we will swing a typewriter. . . GLADYS RICE, NBC soprano, will testify that the age of letter writing is not dead. Concerning Radio -:- By BILL WHIPPLE

Some very interesting data has come to hand which we believe is worthy of your attention; particularly should it appeal to young men in their late teens and early twenties who are casting about for a life's occupation, who are possessed of a restless nature which would unsuit them for the routine and confinement of a business pursuit.

According to Joseph E. Sheedy, operating head of the United States Lines, in a broadcast the other evening, the American Merchant Marine is on the threshold of the greatest development in the history of our country.

Says Mr. Sheedy:

"Right now vessels reaching a total of 700,000 gross tons are being built or planned. Under such conditions, I would advise those of you so inclined to think seriously of following a career at sea. Those of you who love adventure, who want to see the world, who have a yearning for the great open spaces, whether they be land or water, will undoubtedly find a satisfactory career in following the sea. I can recommend it highly as a calling for the intelligent, sturdy and daring young men who possesse qualities of leadership."

In another broadcast last Wednesday evening by an official of the United States Lines, some interesting statistics were quoted which give an idea of the tremendous proportions of our shipping business, and which should show to a young man casting about for some interesting line of endeavor that the merchant marine is a mighty important factor in the nation's affairs.

This country, with its estimated wealth of $400,000,000,000, has a water-born commerce of $8,000,000,000, and a freight bill for carrying this commerce of $725,000,000 a year. Think that over, you young bucks who cry there are no opportunities for you to grasp.

The American shipping companies receive approximately $360,000,000 yearly through carrying passengers anad freight, while $750,000,000 are paid to foreign flag shipping companies. Certainly, with such great sums of money associated with this industry, and it is an industry, no young man need feel that he has gone into a small-town game or that the field is narrow.

Radio Equipped Passenger Trains

While we are in a statistical-giving frame of mind may we enumerate some more interesting data. We folks in the United States like to believe that we lead the world in everything, but the following facts would seem that our neighbor to the North, Canada, makes traveling much pleasanter for her citizens than do our railroads at home.

During the year 1929 Canadian National radio-equipped cars traveled approximately 6,000,000 miles in Canada and the United States providing approximately 210,000 passengers who took advantage of the service with 77,600 hours of entertainment. Out of a total of 111 cars that are now permanently wired for radio, 31 were placed on the road within the last three months.

What should receive the attention of every listener-in tonight at 7:55—it is only a five-minute broadcast — will be John B. Blandford, member of President Hoover's Emergency Committee on Employment, speaking on "Cities and the Unemployment Problem" over the Columbia System.

Tonight from 10:30 to 11:00 over WEEI the "RKO Theater of the Air" are to introduce a new idea in their program. The birthdays of prominent RKO Pictures, Universal, Columbia and Pathe will be announced to the radio audience a few days previous to the celebration of these events. The listeners-in will be advised to send a little note of congratulation to the star whose birthday is approaching, which will be acknowledged with a personal note and an autographed photograph.

Knute Rockne and the Notre Dame Glee Club, will be featured stars on the Armour hour broadcast tonight at 8:30 o'clock. Rockne is a national figure in the sports world and a most interesting speaker.

Santa Family Arrives

A GENUINE WELCOME to the Claus family, including Santa, his son and daughter, was given by Boston folk when all three appeared yesterday in the Jordan Marsh Company parade. The Santason party moved through streets crowded with parents and children. Here we show you the great dragon that thrilled the little ones and the bigger people, too. (Staff photo.)

CHASM SUICIDE IDENTIFIED

Worcester, Nov. 28—The victim of the shooting in Devil's Coffin, a cave in Purgatory Chasm at Sutton, was identified today as Simon Fuch, 43, of Northbridge, a few hours after he had been declared a suicide by the medical examiner.

Fuch, married and father of three children, left his home last Wednesday morning, but did not arrive at his place of employment in a Northbridge mill.

Members of the family who identified the body said they knew of no reason why he should take his life and did not know that he owned a revolver.

The body was found by the Rev. Charles S. Bodwell of Boston, secretary of the Watch and Ward Society, and his two sons, who were exploring the chasm.

Because there were two bullet wounds, one over the heart and the other in the temple, and because the body was wedged between two rocks so that only the head and shoulders were visible, it was at first believed to have been a murder. The revolver was found nearby.

Be Generous This Christmas

The Need Is Great, the Opportunity Is INFINITELY GREATER

Buy liberally, this Christmas. Give all that you can afford, give even that which you feel you cannot afford.

The happiness of giving will make you realize that you COULD afford it.

Give to your family and to friends, and do not forget those to whom this Christmas, without you, would mean want and sorrow.

Remember that there are those, old and young, to whom you can give this year a proof of love or friendship that will not be here next year.

If you MISS THIS OPPORTUNITY it will never return.

GIVE GENEROUSLY, not that it may come back to you, not that you may be rewarded here or hereafter, but that you may DO GOOD and that you may have the approval of your own heart and conscience.

Imitate the great Napoleon who swept aside the objection that circumstances made something difficult. "Circumstances," said he, "I MAKE CIRCUMSTANCES."

Circumstances seem to make generous buying and giving difficult this Christmas, but the man of courage, imagination and a kind heart will say, with Napoleon, "I MAKE CIRCUMSTANCES," and will find a way, in spite of conditions and circumstances, to be generous with his family, liberal with his friends, and above all CHARITABLE TO THE POOR.

The picture on this page by Mrs. Mary Ellen Sigsbee illustrates the miracle that a generous heart can perform on Christmas Day.

On the left you see the sort of Christmas that many families, unfortunately, must look forward to. The stockings are empty, the young mother, with the child in her arms, seeks vainly to make up with greater love for the lack of Christmas joy, the father and "the old people are sorrowful, because of the children's sorrow."

On the right you see the same family, transformed miraculously as night is changed into day by the rising sun, and YOU can cause that transformation.

"And now abideth Faith, Hope, Charity, these three; but the greatest of these is Charity."

Very great is the power of charity that can work such a miracle as is shown in these pictures, changing tearful eyes to laughing eyes, sad faces to glad faces, and heavy hearts to cheerful hearts.

We celebrate on Christmas Day the birth of Christ, and no man should let Christmas pass without celebrating that sacred day, as He would have it celebrated, by contributing happiness to the children that were His constant care.

Make this a happy Christmas, for yourself and others, by generous giving to those about you, and near to you. And make the best investment that any human being can make, an investment in happiness for others that are poor and sorrowful, remembering the warning:

"Though I speak with the tongues of men and of angels, and have not charity, I am become as sounding brass or a tinkling cymbal."

Conquer circumstances. In honor of Christmas Day, and the wonderful birth that it commemorates, practice the generosity that refuses to be controlled by conditions, BUY generously, GIVE generously, perform the miracle of changing sorrow to joy.

Listen, World!—Poker

By ELSIE ROBINSON

I'm Glad I Didn't Pass

I'M THE world's worst poker player—

I CAN NEVER MAKE UP MY MIND TO "PASS."

I always wanted to stay in the game and take a chance.

Even when I'm only holding a couple of two-spots, I want to bluff it through and see what happens.

Elsie Robinson

And, believe me, that desire has cost me plenty in poker. ALSO IN LIFE!

For life and poker are all of a piece.

You take the hand as it's dealt you. You discard, and arrange a new hand, according to your wisdom. Then you play—

Or, if you're a safety-first guy, you just sit tight and pass.

Look around and you'll see thousands of them doing it.

Playing safe—passing up the risks—

And, that's probably sensible.

But, as I said before, I've never been able to do it.

And if you were to read the story of my life—one of those true stories that people never write—you'd probably say I had been a fool for not passing.

Well . . . maybe. But I'm not sorry—

I'm GLAD!

I'm glad I stayed in and took all the chances there were.

For the hurt I've given others—

For the times I've been foolish and flippant—

I'm sorry and ashamed.

But most of the times I tried desperately not to hurt, and I wasn't flippant. I was in earnest. If I was a fool, I was at least a serious fool.

I wanted to know.

AND I FOUND OUT.

I found out plenty.

Plenty about life and plenty about myself—

And a lot of it wasn't pleasing.

But it was all TRUTH—

And Truth, as I see it, IS WORTH ANYTHING IT COSTS.

For—though maybe I'm wrong—it seems to me that the greatest thing a man can do is to seek the Truth, even if he busts himself in so doing. Which, the chances are, he will!

Of course, I'll admit that if he'll play safe—

And pass, unless he's sure he'll win,

He'll probably accumulate more money and a good name—

And, for many people, that's the greatest thing in life.

But for me, I'd rather lose all my money and all my name,

AND HAVE THE PRIDE AND PUNCH OF PLAYING THE GAME,

AND OF FINDING OUT WHAT IT'S ALL ABOUT.

Maybe at best my life's only a couple of two-spots,

And, when the lights go out, the game is done—

BUT I PREFER TO PLAY AS IF I HAD A FULL HOUSE

AND WERE GOING TO SIT IN FOREVER.

However, let me hasten to add—

This is not given as good advice.

What's meat for me may be poison for any other man.

So—play the game as you see it,

Or pass, if that's your code—

But as for me, I'm staying in—

And while there's a card in the deck—

I'M NOT GOING TO PASS.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

Thoughts While Strolling

NEW YORK, Nov. 28—Thoughts while strolling: Bankrupt sale sign: "We made a terrible mistake?" Mrs. Brock Pemberton suggests a Russian countess. Wonder if Mayor Walker can orate without saying "very definite." The best chili is usually in the most disreputable places.

Libby Holman, a Cincinnati, O., girl who made good in the city. Movie theater front with banners like a street carnival. Grand opera nearing an end. It's screech has become a death rattle. Silvered spires like fingers clutching the sky. Ruth Etting and Genevieve Cooper look alike. Wish perfumes were as grand as their bottles. A derby called "The Nanz." The jaunty fawn colored ermine jackets. And perky berets. Don Prince, English ventriloquist. The first time I ever saw Ziegfeld wearing a white collar.

The Parisian tea room owner—Rumplemayer. The bored expression of Scotties. Not many birds dissatisfied with jobs these days. Nobody brings so much joy or gets such little commendation as a letter carrier. So here's a full blown cheer for him!

Ex-cafe and movie orchestras now playing in courtyards for pitched coins. Pink clouds brushing the west. I'd like to be smelling wood smoke in Missouri somehow. Montague Glass's very British accent. Adolph Zukor cries out loud at sad plays, they say. Who remembers when a kitchen was not a bar?

Tenth avenue features a hooch dancer! This way, boys, midnight session! The biting winds from the river. But soon April's laughter again and we'll whine about the humidity. Tenement women with soiled poodles under their arms.

Eager-eyed girls dancing down Broadway to disaster. The Moes and Mannies with tightly gripped cigars. Larry Fay's long face. Irene Bordoni's bangs. Ward Morehouse. Muriel Kirkland's red hair. Two fashionably dressed ladies quarreling. I'll kibitz a little.

A variant of social four-flushing is aided by an agency in Paris that supplies broken down and decadent dukes, viscounts, Russian barons and sundry scorbutic noble whatnots as dinner guests. The New Yorkers send their dinner lists to local English printed newspapers, clip them out and mail them back home. New York!

Ad in morning paper: "Our breakfast enchant. Bacon with the fragile crispness of spun glass. Bright yolks suggesting a sunset. Marmalade dripping nectar, autumnal brown toast and ambrosial coffee."

Parkins, the drool mop!

Joseph E. Corrigan is the only New York magistrate in the Social Register as well as about the only one not issuing alibi announcements. He has a personal fortune and the underworld interests him—hence his occupancy of the post. Secretly he is said to have a hankering to write mystery fiction. He might specialize on some of his missing fellows.

A neat conceit of a bachelor with "store" uppers and lowers is a bathroom rack filled with tooth brushes and various tooth powders.

Between theater acts last evening I heard a gentleman back of me declare: "It is absurd to say any European nation exacts petty graft from Americans." I ached for my passport to toss smack in his lap.

And upon leaving the theater—the Selwyn, the poor theaters need free puffs—my wife dropped behind to speak to friends. While awaiting her in the foyer a bedazzled lady asked me for a light. I snapped my lighter gallantly and was holding the flame to her cigarette when my wife joined me. It was not necessary, but I wonder why I went into elaborate explanations. Incidentally, while awaiting a taxi I counted 14 ladies in evening dress puffing cigarettes, the brazen hussies!

"Don't you know," writes W. S., Baltimore, "only fops, cheap actors and tin horn sports wear spats? I rather like you and I hope this makes you mad."

I did not—5-6-7-8--9-10-11—lose my temper at all.

No Primary Repudiation

People Will Not Tolerate Bossed Conventions as Substitute

Political victories often offer to the winners the temptations that a new toy holds for a child.

They want to cut it open, tear it apart, see what's on the inside and then try to remake it into something else again.

The primary laws and the election laws were adequate enough for the Democratic party to win a distinguished victory a few weeks ago, but there are rumblings now among formal Democratic party leaders of a disposition to tinker with the primary laws by establishing a so-called pre-primary convention.

If any tinkering or political manipulation is to be done, it ought to be on the side of liberalizing the primary laws and of making it less difficult for the people to take part in our primaries rather than of reinstalling anything that savors of the old and discredited boss-controlled convention idea.

The Democratic party in this State at least has been a progressive party. It has escaped the suspicion that the two parties are like two peas in a pod, both nurtured in the same financial and political soil, both concerned in obtaining office only for the disposal of pap and patronage.

Once it acquires that suspicion, by aligning itself with the Republican party in an endeavor to restore bossism in any form, it is doomed.

If there are any little tin-god despots who want this issue of the primaries fought, it is about time for them to know they will be accommodated.

So long as the Initiative and Referendum exists in this State, the people are going to insist upon using it in order to conserve and protect their democratic political rights.

Our 'Mental Experts'

Dr. Stearns on Correction Methods

Dr. A. Warren Stearns, the State Commissioner of Correction, continues to dig himself deeper into the favor of the sensible people of this State by his simple, tender philosophy.

If so-called "mental experts" would forget their elaborate psychology, abandon their complex formulae and treat our mental defectives in accordance with ordinary rules of life the high death toll of unfortunate victims in padded cells would be steadily diminished, he asserts.

He says the human being is somewhat as the kernel of corn, which must be planted in good ground, protected from disease, properly cultivated and then encouraged to stand firmly against the vicissitudes of nature.

Good ground is the family home and school. Disease, he no doubt means, is the temptation to offenses of moral turpitude to which the mental defective yields more easily than his normal brother.

Our social service institutions, including our churches, can make a larger progress for the common good by getting their ministrations to these unfortunate people while there is a chance to mould their lives rather than in waiting to collect them as human wrecks to be deposited in the institutions in which even a kindly Dr. Stearns takes care of them.

"An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure," is an adage that we regard as ancient and moth-eaten, but it is as potent as on the day it first was written.
